Concrete Buries Five

Workers Claw, Dig and Drill

MONTREAL (UPI)—They dug with their hands . . . with bits of wood . . . small shovels . . . and pick-axes. Anything they could find was used in a frantic effort to save their workmates—entombed in 1,600 tons of fast-hardening cement.

For hours the men worked. None admitted it but they knew there was no hope for their friends.

But they kept on. When it got dark searchlights were set up and they kept digging. Even as the concrete hardened the staccato of jack-hammers only stopped when another body was found.

Ironically the mixture was a special quick-hardening variety for winter construction work.

As the concrete started to set so did the face of rescuers.

Marcel Pelletier, aged 32, of Dorval was working in the tunnel when "all hell broke loose."

"It was like the roof of the world fell in on those guys. They didn't stand a chance."

"People came from everywhere to help but I guess we knew it was the end for some of them . . ."

Colonist 500 Fund

Toys for Bidding Tonight

Shoppers with children on their Christmas lists of the playing age can buy an armload of toys tonight at rock-bottom prices — and help Greater Victoria's needy in the process.

Tonight is the night of the big auction for the Daily Colonist 500 Fund.

The toys go on the block at Maynard and Son auction rooms, 733 Johnson at 8 p.m.

On the other hand, anyone with too many toys around the house or with children growing out of the toy stage can still donate the toys to the auction for sale.

As in the past, Maynard's are helping the fund by auctioning the toys and handing the proceeds over to go to the destitute at Christmas.

Many of the toys were collected.

Two Quit Cabinet

Way Cleared for Big Shuffle

OTTAWA (CP) — Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay, both criticized for their furniture purchases on credit, announced their resignations from the federal cabinet Thursday night. Both will continue to sit in Parliament.

Their prepared statements came on the eve of an announcement expected from Prime Minister Pearson on cabinet changes following the Nov. 8 general election.

Both men defended their conduct but listed the furniture issue—Mr. Tremblay made a direct reference to it—as reason for their resignations. Mr. Lamontagne mentioned a "personal transaction"—apparently an indirect reference to the issue.

The resignations give Mr. Pearson plenty of elbow room for the full-scale cabinet shakeup he is expected to announce at a press conference this afternoon. He now has five vacancies to fill.

Walter Gordon resigned the finance portfolio shortly after the election, and Agriculture Minister Hays and Mines Minister MacNaught were defeated in their ridings Nov. 8.

The resignations of the two Quebec MPs were not unexpected. There was considerable speculation that they would leave the cabinet in today's shuffle.

Mr. Lamontagne is member for Outremont - St. Jean, Mr. Tremblay for Matapedia - Matane.

Mr. Tremblay said he had considered resigning last summer when he was ill in hospital but felt it might be interpreted as an admission of guilt "of the many instructions and allegations made against me."

"These circumstances no longer apply."

He quoted from the Dorian report on the Lucien Rivard affair which said if Mr. Tremblay had suffered from statements "it is to be hoped that the persons responsible will now recognize his honesty and integrity."

Mr. Tremblay said he had explained to the Commons he had paid for his furniture within the earliest possible time following delivery and paid regular prices.

"I made it clear that I had enjoyed no benefit nor conditions not otherwise available to anyone else."

Mr. Tremblay opened his letter to the prime minister by saying that since he has been a member of the government the strains of office have been no less than those of many of his colleagues.

"Suffering from hypertension, however, it was natural that my state of health should rapidly deteriorate," he said, then referring to his Easter illness and his consideration of resigning then.

In a letter to the prime minister attached to his resignation, tion, Mr. Lamontagne said that a private transaction he made wasn't "tainted with any dishonesty."

Tremblay

Lamontagne

"The subsequent controversy, which has been perpetuated for more than a year, and which the general election did not stop, requires that I decide whether I can better serve my country at this time inside or outside cabinet."

"I have decided to submit my resignation."

He told the prime minister that for more than 20 years "and often under difficult conditions" he tried to serve his compatriots and his country in universities, civil service and in Parliament to the best of his knowledge and according to his conscience.

"I have valued the opportunity to try to make a contribution to the reorientation of our federalism, to the development of bilingualism, and to the first stage of economic planning."

Egypt Latest

CUT BRITISH TIES

By Reuters

Egypt broke diplomatic relations with Britain Thursday night because of its failure so far to topple Ian Smith's breakaway Rhodesian regime, the Middle East News Agency reported.

The Congo (Brazzaville) also severed relations with Britain, a Radio Brazzaville broadcast said.

The two states joined five other African nations—Ghana, Guinea, Mauritania, Tanzania and Mali—in implementing the 36-nation Organization of African Unity resolution of Dec. 3 calling on African states to cut diplomatic ties with Britain if it did not crush the Smith regime by Dec. 15.

Two of them, Ghana and Tanzania, are members of the Commonwealth, although Ghana said it was considering withdrawing from it. The Congo (Brazzaville), Guinea, Mauritania and Mali are former French territories.

Wilson Tells UN

'Give Us Time For Solution'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Three-quarters of the African delegates to the United Nations turned their backs Thursday on Prime Minister Wilson as he appealed to the General Assembly to support Britain's efforts in the Rhodesian crisis.

'NO TURNING BACK'

"But I beseech this assembly to give us time to deal with this situation," Wilson said with determination. "I have made it clear that in this task to which we have set our hands, there will be no turning back."

The prime minister sat in the assembly with the British delegation when introduced.

PROTESTS FAILURE

The African demonstration was in protest against Britain's failure to bring to an end the seizure of independence by Prime Minister Ian Smith. Albania joined in the walkout.

Tewfik Bouattour, the Algerian ambassador, said the walkout was in protest against British policy in Rhodesia that has led a handful of African nations to break diplomatic relations with Britain.

"A walkout is not dignified and serves no useful purpose," said Nathan Barnes, chief delegate of Liberia, one of the African countries remaining in the hall.

The others were Malawi, Madagascar, Togo, Upper Volta, the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Gabon and the Central African Republic.

NAZIS BACK SMITH

Outside the UN headquarters, three uniformed members of the American Nazi party staged a demonstration in support of Smith's regime in Salisbury. They carried signs which said: "Ian Smith is Right," "Keep Rhodesia White," and "Ban British Goods."

Everything Fine, Says Sharp

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime minister Pearson returned from a Caribbean vacation Thursday, presumably set to announce extensive changes in his cabinet.

He has called a press conference for 2 p.m. PST today. Asked whether he had his cabinet problems solved, Mr. Pearson turned to acting finance minister Mitchell Sharp and asked:

"Are there any problems, Mitchell?"

"Everything is in good shape," Mr. Sharp replied, smiling.

Some 125 construction workers, backed by firemen, policemen and volunteers, used a mobile crane, a bulldozer, and acetylene torches in rescue work.

CONCRETE HARDENS

By nightfall, with temperatures around the freezing mark, more rescuers with searchlights moved in bearing pneumatic drills to attack the hardening concrete.

The collapsed portion of the interchange was to have been the roof of a tunnel designed to take trains underneath the traffic interchange.

The cement was six feet deep on the floor of the tunnel and it was in this that the men were trapped.

Following Space Trouble

Cautious 'Go' Given For Full G-7 Flight

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gemini 7 distance champions Frank Borman and James Lovell were given a tentative "go" for a full 14-day flight Thursday night despite a fuel cell problem that threatened to bring them down one day early.

If all continues as planned in the final stages of their epic mission, Borman and Lovell, now in their 13th day in space, will drop into the Atlantic Ocean Saturday morning near the spot where Gemini 6 rendezvous spacemen Walter M. Schirra and Thomas Stafford landed Thursday morning.

Schirra and Stafford were in great shape Thursday night aboard the U.S.S. Wasp, the prime recovery carrier, after splashing down only 13 miles away at 10:29 A.M. (EST) to end the one-day flight that scored history's first rendezvous in space.

Splashdown on Schedule?

The 42-year-old Schirra even gave a repeat performance of Jingle Bells on the harmonica for the benefit of the Wasp's crewmen. He and Stafford, who had played bells, had started mission controllers early in the day by playing the song after indicating they had seen Santa Claus in orbit.

ORRIT 185

The Gemini 7 space heroes were due to board the Wasp Saturday, but Schirra and Stafford will have left by then.

Gemini 7 sailed into its 185th orbit at 9:33 p.m. (EST).

There were fears after Gemini 6's splashdown that the crew of Borman and Lovell would not be able to make it until Saturday. This was because of a malfunction in two birds of one of the two electrical-powering fuel cells aboard the craft, and indications of trouble in the other.

Borman obviously was concerned about the situation. But after intensive study, mission control said flight director Christopher C. Kraft had decided the mission could go on to its full 266-orbit duration unless further trouble developed.

Earlier, officials said they would decide sometime in the middle of the night whether to cut short by one day the record-shattering flight and bring it down Friday.

The announcement came after all three of the flight directors, who divide up each 24 hours at the control panel, got together and thoroughly reviewed the troubles.

"All indications are that the flight will be continued as scheduled," Gemini control quoted Kraft as saying.

Two of the Gemini's eight manoeuvring thruster rockets also had failed, but they were not essential to completion of the full mission.

The review of the fuel situation came after Borman reported: "It looks to me like this time the cells are really on their way."

At another point he said, with apparent concern, that if the situation got any worse during the night "I'm going to hate to see that carrier (the recovery ship Wasp) go by tomorrow."

Ground control assured him: "We are going to take care of that, Frank. Don't worry."

Pair Announces Resignations

"I have sought to initiate a more dynamic federal policy in cultural affairs in the hope that Canadian unity would thereby acquire a new dimension."

Speculation about their possible resignations resulted from the heavy opposition criticism about the furniture purchases. Both men defended their integrity on this issue.

Mr. Lamontagne said in the Commons earlier this year he began buying $6,056.28 worth of furniture from Adolph and the late Max Seifkind of Montreal in late 1961.

He received a bill on Jan. 21, 1964, after the firm went bankrupt. In March 1964, he paid $1,000 and offered to pay the balance at $200 a month.

Mr. Tremblay said he bought $4,000 worth of furniture from a company in which Max Seifkind had an interest, after becoming a member of Parliament in the 1963 election.

He said he paid for the furniture with a $3,341 cheque Feb. 25, 1964, after the firm went bankrupt. A final payment of $241 was made March 2, 1964.

Mr. Lamontagne, 48, was an economic adviser to the Privy Council, resigning in 1957 when the Diefenbaker government took power. Later he was an economic adviser to Mr. Pearson, then Opposition leader, while holding down a professorship of economics at the University of Ottawa. He won Outremont-St. Jean riding in 1963 after unsuccessful attempts to enter the Commons in 1958 and 1962. When the Liberals took office he was appointed president of the Privy Council.

He was moved to the portfolio of secretary of state in February, 1964, and was responsible for answering to the Commons for broadcasting and the 1967 centennial commission.

Mr. Tremblay, 43, entered the Commons in 1963. An economist also he was deputy minister of industry and commerce in the Quebec government from 1960 until he resigned to run for Parliament.

Mr. Tremblay was appointed to the cabinet April 22, 1963, as minister without portfolio, and became immigration minister Feb. 2, 1964. He shifted to the postmaster-general portfolio last Feb. 15.

Legion Branch Pays Tributes

Certificates of merit were presented Wednesday night to H. K. Avery and Alfred G. Alnutt by Royal Canadian Legion, Esquimaux Branch 172.

Mr. Alnutt is pipe-major of the branch's boys' band. Mr. Avery has a long history of accomplishment in his work for the branch.

E. J. Gilhen was given his past president's medal and pin at the same presentation night meeting.

Caviar Lost; Six on Trial

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Six Russian factory executives accused of pumping waste into the Volga River are to be put on trial because their carelessness lost the state valuable supplies of caviar. It was disclosed here.

Large quantities of fish were destroyed, including valuable varieties of sturgeon, from which caviar comes.

To my supporters in the recent Mayoralty Election and particularly to those who have helped and guided me through my campaign, go my heartfelt thanks for a job well and faithfully done.

lected by the Kinamen Club at its annual bingo Monday. The toys entitled the donor to a free chance on a Christmas turkey. The Kinamen provided the turkeys.

Those wanting to donate toys for tonight's auction can call Reliable Transfer, if there is a batch of toys, and have them picked up without charge.

The number is 388-5733. Reliable donates its services free to the fund.

When all the money is in, it's divided evenly 500 ways and cheques are sent out to the area's neediest families just before Christmas.

Last year the fund was able to provide $25 for each. There isn't much time left to squeeze in a contribution. Wednesday will be last day the fund will be able to accept do-lations if the cheques are to go out in time.

In a recent list of contributors, A. H. Gildemeister was erroneously named as donor of $5. The gift was actually on behalf of the Dickens Fellowship.

Your Good Health

Some Crash Diets Are Safe Under Strict Supervision

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you discuss fasting to reduce weight? I have heard of taking only water and vitamins for 10 to 30 days, without hunger, and with beneficial results. Is this method really safe? Must it be supervised by a doctor? Is there an age limit?—B.K.E.

I would say that there is some difference of opinion on this method of reducing. So far as I know, it is safe enough when properly supervised—but this means much closer supervision than you suppose: Either in hospital, or under complete daily supervision of a doctor who understands this method thoroughly.

NOT SAFE

It is NOT safe to attempt any such regimen and see your doctor once a week, or to call him and say you still feel good. Rather, a battery of laboratory tests must be employed repeatedly. For just a couple of examples, the mineral balance in the body is important. If it begins to get out of balance, it should be corrected promptly. Or, under such a rigid fast, you may occur due to uric acid accumulation. This must be corrected at once.

Obviously it is possible to lose weight rapidly and in large amounts by this method, and after the fast few days people report that they stop feeling hungry. However, as you can understand, it is neither a simple nor inexpensive method because of the amount of testing and supervision required.

NO AGE LIMIT

I don't know of any age limit, but a person should be in robust health before starting such a program.

Possibly the most basic objection is this—the method doesn't teach the patient new eating habits. He got fast before! If he goes back to his former habits, he can get fat again. For this reason alone there is a great deal to be said for the slow, simple way of reducing—learning to eat a little less of everything, and especially to eat less of the more fattening foods.

DEAR DR. MOLNER:

My boy, 8½, has been obese. I can't say he complains too much, but they protrude after a bowel movement. Is this uncommon for his age, and is surgery necessary?—MRS. C. J. M.

Hemorrhoids are not common in children but they do occur occasionally. Faulty bowel habits and constipation usually precede the trouble.

As a rule they are not treated by an operation unless they are bleeding and very painful. The treatment instead generally consists of a gradual process of training the child to have more regular movements and a soft stool. This involves patience on your part, greater intake of water or other fluids, on his part, more bulk in the diet such as from fruits and vegetables, and perhaps stool softeners as may be prescribed by your doctor.

NATO Sets New Sights

PARIS (CP)—For the first time since its inception, the North Atlantic Alliance has begun to reappraise its objectives giving more attention to a drive for East-West disarmament and Minister Gromyko, said the NATO council paid more attention to disarmament than at any previous session.

The foreign, defence and finance ministers, ending their three-day talks, expressed concern Thursday about the danger of nuclear proliferation and agreed to explore every possible means of obtaining East-West agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons and to achieve disarmament pacts.

WILL REVIEW PROGRAMS
They also agreed in principle to review their own military planning so as to strengthen NATO's mobile "fire brigade" force.

Canada, the United States and Britain believe this force needs more troops, financing and transport. The "fire brigade" unit, which includes one Canadian battalion, is designed to quell small armed clashes before they can turn into a nuclear struggle.

The NATO ministers also accepted in principle the U.S. plea for a five-year military planning concept, to provide for more efficient long-range production and more realistic goals based on what each member country is prepared to contribute.

Maugham's Funeral

'As He Wished'

LONDON (AP)—The ashes of W. Somerset Maugham will be buried in the grounds of Canterbury Cathedral at a private ceremony Wednesday. This was as he wished it.

Long a resident of France, the British author died early Thursday of a stroke at the age of 81 in his beloved Riviera villa at Nice.

AN AGNOSTIC
As an agnostic, Maugham said last year he wanted no "holy Henry" delivering a eulogy following the "hellishly boring experience" of dying. These last wishes are being carried out.

The body lay Thursday in a room in his villa without the flowers he loved. This was another wish. He said he did not want flowers around his bier.

The body will be cremated Monday, as he requested, at Marseille. Then the ashes will be brought to England.

Very Rev. I. H. White-Thomson, Dean of Canterbury, said Maugham's son-in-law, Lord Glendevon, was making the burial arrangements. Maugham and his daughter were estranged.

A contemporary of such giants as Bernard Shaw, Oscar Wilde, Arnold Bennett and H. G. Wells, Maugham never pretended to such eminence but he was rated as a top craftsman. He turned out 30 plays, 25 novels and 120 short stories.

Canada Plays New Role

LONDON (CP)—Canada took over Thursday as diplomatic intermediary between Tanzania and Britain and faced the possibility of serving the same role between Ghana and Britain.

Tanzania broke relations with Britain at midnight Wednesday and Ghana did likewise 15 hours later in protest at Britain's failure to take more severe action against the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia.

Ties Cut

Since the 36-member OAU issued its Dec. 3 call to its members, several African countries, including Ethiopia on whose territory the severance decision was made, have indicated unwillingness to break with Britain at this time.

President Dawid Dube of the Central African Republic Wednesday night ridiculed the OAU decision and said his country would not follow it.

Morocco will not break unless all African states do so unanimously, its government-controlled newspaper reports.

STRONG BACKING
Britain received strong NATO backing for its economic sanctions against the breakaway colony at a ministerial council meeting in Paris this week.

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, told NATO Canada had cut exports from Rhodesia by 98 per cent and would consider further action in support of Britain.

WIDENS SANCTIONS
Japan ordered further import restrictions against Rhodesia Thursday after a request was received from the British ambassador in Tokyo, Sir Francis Rundle.

The Commonwealth relations office in London said the breaking of relations by African states would not help Britain solve the Rhodesian crisis.

REGRETS BREAK
It issued a statement saying: "While we understand the passionate feelings of the African governments on Rhodesia we regret any break in relations."

"We do not understand the motives of the decision to break with Britain. Such action cannot be helpful in our efforts to find a solution to the Rhodesian problem."

CONTROLLING VOICE
President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, in announcing the rupture in relations in Accra, made it clear his country would restore normal ties as soon as the breakaway colony's Negro majority is assured of a controlling voice in Rhodesia.

He said sanctions alone are inadequate and must be backed by military intervention, but he said Britain showed no signs of taking such action.

NAMED FIVE
The president said he would call on OAU members to break with all colonial or former colonial powers if they stood in the way of African unity. He named Britain, France, Spain, Portugal and Belgium in this context.

In Dar es Salaam, about 1,000 banner-waving Africans marched Thursday past what was until Wednesday night the British high commission in Tanzania.

Pakistani Dead 15,000?

Cyclone Toll Mounts

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI)—Thousands were feared killed in a cyclone and tidal wave which devastated large areas of East Pakistan and nearby islands in the Bay of Bengal, according to reports Thursday.

The reports reaching Dacca said as many as 15,000 persons may have died when the 140-mph cyclone ripped through a 6,000-square-mile area and sent the tidal wave smashing over the islands and the coast in the southern part of east Pakistan late Tuesday and early Wednesday.

First fragmentary reports from the stricken area about 250 miles southeast of here began trickling in to Dacca Thursday. It was the fourth disastrous cyclone to smash the area in the last five years. Each of the preceding storms also killed thousands of men, women and children.

At Cox's Bazar, 90 miles south of Chittagong, the water of the Bay of Bengal surged about 12 feet above normal high tide and swept the entire area for several hours.

Reports from the offshore island of Maheskhal near Cox's Bazar said more than 10,000 persons were feared dead on this island alone. The island was reported to have been swept from end to end by the tidal wave.

While much of the stricken area was still cut off, authoritative reports estimated the overall toll at 15,000. More than 2,000 were fishermen caught at sea in small boats when the cyclone struck, the reports said. Trawlers and naval vessels were scouring the sea for possible survivors.

Canada Buys More Than It Sells

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian balance of international payments ran to a $754,000,000 deficit in the first nine months of 1965, compared with a deficit of $272,000,000 in the same period of 1964, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

The third-quarter deficit was only a slight improvement of $6,000,000 from the deficit amassed in the first half of the year.

LARGE INCREASES
The bureau said larger increases in imports than in exports were the leading factor.

Allowing for seasonal factors, the third-quarter deficit was the equivalent of an annual rate of excess of imports over exports amounting to $1,000,000,000.

"Increases in imports are a reflection of strong Canadian demands associated with record levels of incomes and expenditures, including the large investments in machinery and equipment and some accumulation of inventories," the bureau said.

"Exports to the U.S. and some overseas destinations have continued to rise over last year, and in the third quarter a new factor in exports overseas for this year was the first delivery in the sales of wheat to the U.S.S.R. announced during the quarter."

Try Bonded Stock on a friend without letting him see the label

It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky: how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?

If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can conceal the label but you can't disguise the flavour. It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour that dyed-in-the-wool whisky drinkers love.

So if you know someone who buys whisky by labels, introduce him to flavour. Bonded Stock flavour. He'll never look back.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Canada's Move

IT IS NOT WITHOUT significance that the first two African Commonwealth nations to break off diplomatic relations with Britain in protest over Prime Minister Wilson's handling of the Rhodesian crisis are those who are most under the influence of Communist powers.

The two—Ghana and Tanzania—though officially professing their non-alignment with any non-African political ideology have long made it clear to the West that they look with considerable favor upon the Communist system.

And with all the finesse of a baraza bargainer they have sought to place their future political allegiance on the block for the highest bidder.

And in this matter of international blackmail they have been most successful. Millions of dollars and millions of pounds—and no doubt millions of roubles—have been poured into their backward countries in gifts, grants and loans made by the Western democratic and Communist governments alike.

Even Canada has been played for a patsy in this somewhat sordid game. At this very moment Ottawa is paying out 10,000,000 taxpayers' dollars for the dubious privilege of setting up an air force for the pro-Communist government of Tanzania.

Now that these two Red-leaning African republics have broken with Britain, it is to be hoped that they will be expelled from the Commonwealth at once and that Ottawa will finally see the futility of its ill-considered gesture of friendship and withdraw its material and technical aid immediately.

If it does not, it will be taken throughout Africa and by the world at large as proof that Canada now allies itself with the irresponsible nations of the Organization for African Unity in their demand for war and bloodshed over Rhodesia.

The Barred Door

ONCE AGAIN a Russian hockey team is touring Canada and would like to test its mettle against one of our crack professional clubs but the chap who heads the international amateur hockey body says no.

The objection doesn't stem from any ideological threats but from the long outmoded idea that amateurs shouldn't play against professionals.

This proposition is the more farcical when one realizes that in prominent spectator sports there is scarcely a true-blue amateur in the whole wide world. Shamateur is the more correct term for most of the sports figures who perform under the guise of amateurism.

The Russian hockey team itself is not truly amateur, being state subsidized and professionally geared towards the Olympic and world championships it has come to dominate. Neither is the Canadian national team which competes in these competitions of original amateur vintage.

But the latter cannot command the best players this country produces; these are contained in the professional ranks. The real test of Soviet development as a contender of overall hockey supremacy will come only when a Russian team faces the best of Canadian talent.

Barkus is willing in the shape of the touring Russians, but the ancient fetish that still holds at international amateur headquarters bars the door.

The Toronto Maple Leafs for example say they are ready to play the Soviet team any time and in any place, and the coach of our own Victoria Maple Leafs doesn't think it equal to the demands of WHL play. It is a pity that it isn't the latter who will face the Russians at Memorial Arena on Monday.

But acute local arena fans may be able to judge something of the quality of the visitors and their future potential in the hockey world.

A Friendly Ruler

THERE ARE SOME individuals whose personality arrests the imagination of the world and suddenly spreads into a degree of familiarity across the globe.

Such was Queen Salote of Tonga, the ruler of a tiny British protectorate in the South Seas, a kingdom about one-fifth the size of Vancouver Island with a population not much larger than that of Saanich municipality.

Probably most people had never heard of this Polynesian island group or of the sovereign who had ruled there for 35 years, until she appeared in London at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth in 1953, there to win unusual attention by an imposing yet gentle presence that brought her immediate acclaim. The tall South Seas sovereign quickly captured the hearts of Londoners and television carried her image around the globe.

Now the queen who came from an unbroken line of kings stretching back into ancient history has died, leaving behind warm memories not alone among her own sorrowing people but far beyond.

Two hundred years ago Captain Cook described her domain as the "friendly islands," and it is as a friendly personality who carried on her royal heritage with dignity and concern for her subjects that the outside world will think of her.

News of her passing comes as though that world had known her intimately; her name had become familiar and pleasing to recall.

Tame Game

IT IS A CURIOUS sort of mentality which prompts people to kill the stately swans which made their home on Swan Lake and provided delight and amusement for the children of the area.

They were shot, it is believed, by youths armed with a .22 rifle.

It is scarcely less reprehensible, it will seem to most sportsmen, to shoot down the magnificent geese which for years have made Langford Lake area a sanctuary and which have been fed regularly by some residents.

There is one small unprotected area there where they can be hunted. And hunted they are, to the point where their eventual extermination is only a matter of time.

"It's like shooting fish in a barrel," one frustrated Langford resident expostulated.

Certainly none will deny the right of a hungry man to hunt game anywhere. But the killing of virtually tame wildlife, which will feed at one's doorstep, hardly qualifies itself as sport.

Was Moscow Mission Wasted Time?

Britain Has Key to Diplomatic Doors

By KENNETH HOLROYD from London

HOW big an obstacle to worthwhile East-West discussions is the Viet Nam problem?

What can talks between a Western and a Soviet foreign minister achieve at a time when there is clearly no willingness on the part of the Communists to talk constructively about ending the conflict in Viet Nam?

From the communique issued after the Moscow talks between Britain's Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, it would appear that they can achieve little more than a "frank and businesslike" exchange of views.

It is significant, however, that both sides have expressed their belief that it would be useful to continue these exchanges—and the communique, in fact, does mention the desirability of "periodical meetings."

But the question looming largest in many people's minds must surely be the extent to which Mr. Stewart was able to sway Russian thinking in any way.

Unfortunately he was unable to make any progress with the Russians on the subject of Viet Nam. The communique merely records the fact that the two foreign ministers stated their respective positions on this question.

Mr. Stewart called for an end to fruitless attempts to apportion blame for this terrible conflict and repeated his suggestion for a conference which would quickly arrange a ceasefire and make arrangements for both North and South Viet Nam to be left in peace.

The American reaction to his suggestion was swift—Secretary of State Dean Rusk immediately declared that the United States was willing to attend such a conference.

The Russians, on their part, maintained that they were not empowered to negotiate and that it was a matter for North Viet Nam. They have also returned to a completely negative inquest-holding.

And the Hanoi government, backed by Peking, continues to rule out discussion.

Nevertheless, it seems clear that in spite of Viet Nam the Russians do want to continue to talk with the West, and there was in fact a slightly more interesting discussion between Mr. Stewart and Mr. Gromyko when they went on to some of the other problems dividing East and West.

Non-dissimulation of nuclear weapons was the other big subject discussed by the two foreign ministers and it would seem that, contrary to belief before Mr. Stewart's visit, their discussion was able to open the door slightly for further talks on the actual text of this vitally important treaty will be pursued in Geneva, at the United Nations and through other channels which are likely to prove helpful.

The subject is certain to occupy a prominent part in the meeting in the United States between British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and President Johnson, and the subsequent meeting between Chancellor Erhard and the U.S. president.

While there has been close interest in Britain in the exchanges in Moscow on international problems, reaction in the House of Commons after Mr. Stewart's return showed how strongly British political and public opinion feels about the case of Mr. Gerald Brooke, the 28-year-old London lecturer who was jailed by the Russians for entering Russia with anti-Communist propaganda.

Mr. Stewart agreed that the Brooke case could not be regarded as satisfactory and that further action must be considered, although he said that the securing of consular visits for Mr. Brooke during his visit, was a useful advance.

It is in fact cases and incidents like that of Mr. Brooke which probably give rise to the gravest misgivings among ordinary men and women in Britain about Soviet intentions on the larger scale.

The severe punishment of individuals whose activities under Western laws would probably not even constitute an offence or be considered a threat to security, and the harsh treatment of certain Commonwealth students revises memories of the dark days of the Stalinist secret police.

If the intention to work for the further development of relations between Britain and the Soviet Union—and for the strengthening of peace—expressed in the Moscow communique, can be carried further, then Mr. Stewart will have reason to be satisfied with his visit.

At the same time he has made clear that his desire for improved Anglo-Soviet relations will not be furthered by any diminution of Britain's loyalty to her Western allies, and the reaction of the Soviet press shows that this was not lost on the Russians.

One cannot be sure at this stage, but any move which lends substance to the slightly more hopeful impression left by the Moscow talks will be warmly welcomed in the West.

Meanwhile, as Mr. Stewart told the House of Commons last week, discussions on the actual text of this vitally important treaty will be pursued in Geneva, at the United Nations and through other channels which are likely to prove helpful.

In Perspective:

Negotiation Vital In Rhodesia Crisis

By MAX FREEDMAN from Washington

THE present stage of the crisis in Rhodesia should surprise no one familiar with the history of sanctions in the past. The cry for more pressure on the Smith government has increased as that government has failed to oblige us by falling swiftly from power and being replaced by a group of men less hostile to the principles of racial justice.

But in England, where the hard decisions have to be made, the divisions in opinion are more marked and more ominous. For the first time Prime Minister Wilson is beginning to falter in his mastery of the situation. He appears to be waiting on events instead of being the pilot in the storm. The Conservative leader, Edward Heath, has developed a flexible conscience and wavers about what should be done next in Rhodesia. Joseph Grimond, the Liberal leader, continues to ask rather plaintively why Parliament ever agreed to impose sanctions if it is now hesitating to apply them in full severity.

These political divisions are an obscure index to the heavy and anxieties of public opinion. The hot fit of anger at the Smith government has been replaced by a more cautious mood. People are wondering whether the government really knows how to work its way out of this labyrinth of anxieties. A concealed sympathy for Rhodesia has crept ominously to the surface. Can a nation be coerced into justice? This is the sombre and challenging question which haunts the British debate now, and honest men will give no easy answer to it.

In Washington there has also been a struggle with second thoughts, though by no means a retreat from principle. A delayed but vivid apprehension is spreading that the Afro-Asian countries at the United Nations are not always the wisest counsellors. All the same, the conviction persists, as it should, that the Smith government is an organized insult to justice and human dignity.

The second thoughts are running in the direction of devising practical measures for dealing with a difficult political problem instead of organizing an emotional crusade against evil. This quieter approach may not satisfy those who want a quick dramatic victory but it may produce a less withered harvest in the end. It is always a gain when emotional indignation no longer is treated as a substitute for reasoned policy.

How do we best encourage these forces of moderation to emerge and take charge? That surely is the urgent issue. It is most unlikely that the African leaders in Rhodesia will walk in the paths of moderation while they feel the hot breath of the massed African states at their back. It is even more likely that the white leaders of Rhodesia will be bullied into repentance and justice by growing pressure from Britain and the United States; it is absolutely certain that they will not respect and follow the wishes of the United Nations.

In short, it is even more important to re-establish political negotiations between the Smith government and the Wilson government than it is to think of all sanctions and armed intervention. Is there no useful role for the Johnson administration in this anxious and confused situation?

Chinese forces seem to have suffered a major, and perhaps permanent, setback. It would be premature for Americans to suppose that the balance of power in Asia will continue to tilt in their favor. But it is clear that the supposition that America's position in Southeast Asia must continue to deteriorate has not been supported by recent events.

Since I have certainly used this supposition in previous assessments of American policies, you have a right to ask me to reconsider. But reconsidering, I still find a chasm between American principles and American practices—a chasm which is unaffected by the successes of the last few months.

The American presence in South Viet Nam exhibits a basic ambiguity which the administration has done nothing to resolve. On the one hand, it is clear that only American military strength prevents the forcible assimilation of South Viet Nam into a united, Communist-dominated nation. But on the other hand, it is equally clear that American military strength maintains by force the division of Viet Nam, and domination by a military dictatorship in the South.

Some advocates of American policy assume that the South Vietnamese cannot want to come under Communist rule, so that the fact that they are not free to express their views on reunification is unimportant. Some opponents assume that the South Vietnamese cannot want to continue the division of Viet Nam so that the fact that they would not be free to reject Communism if the Americans withdrew is unimportant.

I dissent from both of these assumptions. The South Vietnamese should be given the opportunity to decide for themselves whether they prefer reunification under Communism, or no Communism and the continued division of their country. The United States still does not admit that it has prevented South Viet Nam from making that decision.

It still has not committed itself to seeking an end to hostilities which will permit the South Vietnamese to go Communist if they choose. And so its strictures against Communist intervention in Viet Nam, although justified in themselves, are still a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

Chinese seem to be losing friends, even in Asia. China's threat to intervene in the conflict between India and Pakistan prompted a cease-fire agreement—an agreement hardly compatible with the view that Pakistan sought alignment with China. In Indonesia, pro-

Police complain that this incident was untidy. They had allowed the men to go through unchallenged on the strength of a letter from a senior police officer in Blantyre. It transpired that this letter of authority had been issued by the police officer at the request of a senior official of the Malawi Congress Party, who had vouched for the men's good character.

Such confusion, police officers are saying, now, will not be resolved until control of the police is invested in some political appointee, almost certainly an African. It is thought that such an appointment would release the police from suspicion and allow them to go about their work more freely.

Meanwhile, European police officers argue that the first serious challenge to the country's security will give them a chance to reinstate themselves, and that the government will then learn to value their professionalism.

Nothing in this crisis has been more significant than the growing embarrassment felt by Englishmen over the conduct of the African spokesmen at the United Nations. The credentials of these Englishmen on civil liberty and racial equality do not suffer when judged by the highest American standards. They do not have to be lectured on the importance of freedom. Yet they resent the smug oversimplification of the African states, the crude appeal to racial solidarity which is a form of color prejudice in reverse, the squalid parade of threats and recriminations, the barely concealed desire to create a situation which would compel Britain to take more stringent action. This may be good African politics but it is less clear that it is good for Rhodesia or good for peace.

The central problem in Rhodesia has not changed in all these weeks of angry emotions and half-hearted sanctions. It remains a problem of making a fresh start towards the establishment of a system of government in Rhodesia that would maintain a fair balance between the two races. Anyone who thinks that this is an easy problem which will be solved by shouted slogans at the United Nations simply knows nothing about Rhodesia. We must act on the principle that moderate and responsible men will be willing to accept the principles of fair play between the two races. If we are wrong in this assumption, there is no alternative to the horrid danger of racial war, if not now, then before many years have passed.

How do we best encourage these forces of moderation to emerge and take charge? That surely is the urgent issue. It is most unlikely that the African leaders in Rhodesia will walk in the paths of moderation while they feel the hot breath of the massed African states at their back. An Unequal Burden

I have just voted "yes" on the hospital plebiscite although it will bear more heavily on me than the average.

However it seems a good time to draw attention to the weaknesses of our tax structure. One of these days we must take a harder look at the situation whereby such social services are borne to such a degree by property, particularly home sites.

There seems to me something fundamentally wrong when one who chooses to improve his home, rather than, let us say, put his money in jewelry, yachts or extra automobiles, is penalized taxwise for this choice of values.

The far western provinces, at least, seem to have got themselves into the position where the provincial government is rich and the municipalities poor. This has nothing to do with relative merit, but simply the accident of the distribution of taxing powers many years ago.

It seems ridiculous that a province which could think of paving a highway to the Yukon should have hospitals or schools in a penurious state. Whatever the outcome of the hospital vote, we should keep the future financing of such services under continuing critical examination.

CLIFFORD E. LEE,
Turgenev Terrace.

A Better Life

Since the district property-owners voted an emphatic NO to the suggested method of financing needed hospitalization in Greater Victoria area, may I be permitted to offer a suggestion to your readers as a means to that end. I suggest closing all churches in North America we could have billions of dollars with which to provide hospital care for the needy, higher schools and better education for coming generations, acceptable medicine for the sick, for the retarded, better mental institutions for the present neglected mentally ill children and better homes for older and now long-neglected, if not totally ignored, persons of mental imbalance.

Viet Nam Widens Red Split

Escalation of the war in Viet Nam — the one development which some observers thought would drive the Russians and Chinese together — has produced the contrary effect.

The two giants of world communism are now in such conflict that formal diplomatic and ideological rupture may be unavoidable.

The break could come at either or both of two meetings not far in the distance.

● The first Chinese Communist Party Congress in nine years is scheduled to be held late this year or early next year. It would not be surprising if that congress launches a new "comintern" to succeed the defunct third international which Stalin, under pressure from his western allies, liquidated during the Second World War.

● At the end of March, most of the world's party leaders will come to Moscow as "fraternal delegates" to the 23rd Soviet party congress. The question of what to do with the Chinese will almost certainly be taken up.

Shortly before his fall from power in October, 1964, Nikita Khrushchev had summoned a meeting to prepare a world conference of 90-odd parties, most of them following the Soviet line, which would have formally expelled Peking from the international movement.

This drastic act was postponed by the succeeding team led by first party secretary Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin.

But their efforts to moderate the conflict failed. It took only a few months for Peking to brand the new Soviet leaders as "more wily and more diabolic" and hence more dangerous to them than "arch-revisionist Khrushchev."

Peking turned a deaf ear to all Soviet entreaties for unity of the Communist countries to face the "common imperialist enemy" in Viet Nam and accused Moscow of betraying Hanoi to the Americans.

China's campaign to keep Russia out of the Afro-Asian community failed as the majority of the Afro-Asian nations were reported to have voted for admitting Moscow to the abortive second Bandung conference.

Mao Tse Tung lost face over the Kashmir dispute and China's unexpected threat to intervene against India only to be warned by Moscow against "pouring oil on the flames." The Russians won an impressive psychological victory when India and Pakistan agreed to Soviet mediation at Tashkent.

China's isolation was again emphasized when Cuba's Fidel Castro, who had been straddling the fence between Moscow and Peking, took a definite pro-Soviet position.

BACKGROUND

The fires of Chinese intransigence have been further fed by reverses over the past months which have caused China's prestige to fall perceptibly in Asia and Africa as Russia's has arisen.

Ben Bella's ouster in Algeria was a serious blow to Peking, next in seriousness perhaps only to the virtual destruction of the Indonesian Communist party.

China's campaign to keep Russia out of the Afro-Asian community failed as the majority of the Afro-Asian nations were reported to have voted for admitting Moscow to the abortive second Bandung conference.

Mao Tse Tung lost face over the Kashmir dispute and China's unexpected threat to intervene against India only to be warned by Moscow against "pouring oil on the flames." The Russians won an impressive psychological victory when India and Pakistan agreed to Soviet mediation at Tashkent.

China's isolation was again emphasized when Cuba's Fidel Castro, who had been straddling the fence between Moscow and Peking, took a definite pro-Soviet position.

By HENRY SHAPIRO from Moscow

creasing reluctance to stand up and be counted.

Brezhnev, the Soviet party chief, in the past few months has received secretly most of the European party leaders. He conferred with Poland's Wladyslaw Gomulka, Hungary's Janos Kadar, East Germany's Walter Ulbricht, Bulgaria's Todor Zhivkov, Czechoslovakia's Antonin Novotny, Romania's Nicolae Ceausescu, Yugoslavia's Tito and Cuba's Raoul Castro.

French President Charles de Gaulle once said that Stalin created a great empire and Khrushchev frittered it away. That may be a gross simplification, but there is no denying the liquidation of the monolithic house that Lenin and Stalin built.

Worldwide political and economic developments, including the stabilization and prosperity of the capitalist system, have changed the face of international communism.

Khrushchev, in his flamboyant pledge to "bury" the capitalist world, did not threaten the use of military means. He dramatized what had long been a Russian communist article of faith—that by developing their economies the socialist countries would eventually prove superior to the capitalist ones.

The Russians are stubbornly going ahead with streamlining their economy by introducing new incentives for peasants and workers and granting wide discretionary powers to industrial managers.

This, of course, is rank heresy to the Chinese who have argued plausibly that no country has ever voluntarily gone Communist.

Said the Peking People's Daily on Nov. 30:

When Brezhnev and Kosygin "are not busy running errands for the U.S. aggressors who are anxious to find a way out of their predicament in Viet Nam, they are restoring capitalism in the U.S.S.R."

The vital clash has come over Viet Nam. American action has not only failed to bring the Russians and Chinese together but has thrust them further apart than they have ever been before.

If the two Communist leaders cannot forget their differences temporarily to come to the aid of one of their allied socialist countries, what happens to the doctrine of wars of national liberation which both are pledged to support?

Can such wars be realistically supported when Moscow is hankering for détente with the West while Peking bluntness tells the Russians "We do not trust you" and sabotages the delivery of Soviet arms to Viet Nam?

Forty-eight years after the Russian revolution, the power of nationalism has proved much stronger than Marxist internationalism ever thought.

Banda Counters Peking Move

Two Chinas Meet—In Malawi

By TOM FORD, from Zomba, Malawi trators across the Songwe River.

A semi-secret mission from Formosa has been touring Malawi, unheralded and unannounced by both governments. Banda directed their attention to Karonga where a rice-growing project is considered feasible.

The technicians from Formosa agreed that the plan was feasible but asked: "Couldn't we do it somewhere else?" Banda is said to have replied: "Not if you want diplomatic recognition."

To show his good faith Banda voted against the recent United Nations resolution on the admission of Communist China.

Banda, who has spent most of his life in Britain, is strongly pro-Western in his thinking.

He regards what he calls "Chinese imperialism" as the biggest danger facing new African states.

He declared recently: "What China wants I don't want, what China doesn't want I want."

The idea of setting the Formosa government against the Peking influence in Africa came to Banda some time ago when Chinese Premier Chou En-lai came to terms with Malawi's northern neighbor, Tanzania. Malawi and Tanzania have been in a state of undeclared war.

Banda has made it clear to the Formosa regime that their technicians' activities at Karonga might not be confined to the growing of rice. They might be called upon to help halt a Communist advance on his tiny impoverished nation, he said.

Collaborator To Be Shot

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A court has sentenced a Russian to the firing squad for collaborating with the Germans during the Second World War and taking part in the execution of young Communist partisans.

Tass news agency said Ivan Melnikov hid for 20 years before being brought to trial in Krasnodar, Eastern Ukraine.

Witches Sought In Uganda

KAMPALA (AP)—Two persons died, 200 hid in police stations and 137 were arrested in Eastern Uganda after tribesmen organized vigilante gangs to clear the district of witches and cattle thieves, according to reports reaching Kampala. The gangs scoured the countryside attacking suspects. Calm was restored by 100 police.

Affluent Diet Spells Death

By GEORGE GETZE

U.S. armed forces are fed a diet that actually tends to raise the already high American death rate from heart and circulatory disease, according to a specialist.

Dr. William Dock, chief of medical services at the Brooklyn Veterans Administration Hospital in New York, called the armed forces diet an "atherogenic" one—that is, a diet that causes heart trouble.

He listed the chief culprits among the foods in the armed forces diet as milk, butter, eggs and beef from cattle that have been fattened in feeding pens just before being slaughtered.

"Being well-fed is not always an advantage," Dr. Dock said.

"Heart disease used to be a disease of rich people, but now that almost everyone can afford rich foods and animal fats, heart disease is a feature of mass culture and the affluent society."

He said the high rate of heart disease among young American males was first noticed in the First World War, hundreds of American soldiers in their 20s and 30s died of heart disease, and the contrast of these statistics with those of the British and other allied armies was striking.

There are other statistical pictures that strikingly implicate rich diets in the assessment of the causes of heart disease, Dr. Dock said.

He called the countries around the Mediterranean sea an island of low coronary disease incidence, and said the death rate rose "as one moved north in Europe."

Finland, the country farthest north and the one that consumes the most animal fats, has the highest heart disease death rate, Dr. Dock said.

"Some people say the drinking of wine in Mediterranean countries is the reason they have less circulatory disease, but it is more likely because they are poorer and can't afford so much meat and other foods rich in animal fats," he said.

Americans, of course, make matters worse, he said. They not only eat a lot of rich food, they eat a lot of sugar, drink a lot of alcohol and smoke a lot of tobacco. Each of these, according to Dr. Dock, raises the level of cholesterol and other fats in the blood.

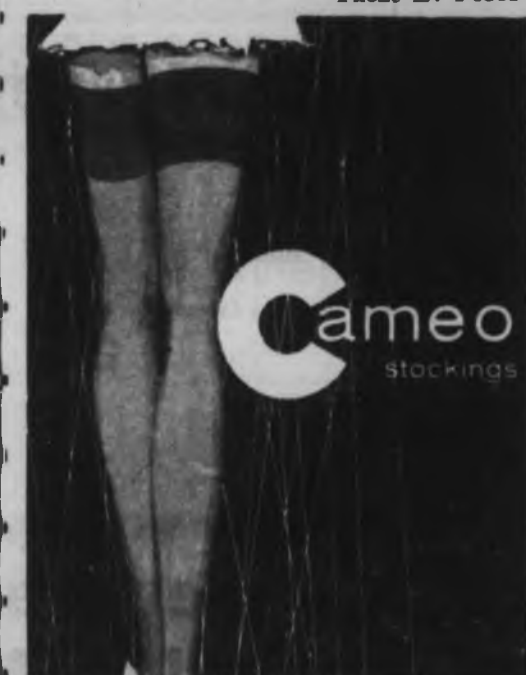

Even the emotional stress of competitive life raises the fats in the blood and is therefore "atherogenic," Dr. Dock said he thought the worst emotion of all—the most atherogenic—was anger with oneself.

"If you can blame somebody else for things going wrong you'll be better off," he said. "That kind of anger isn't so bad for you as the anger that is directed at yourself."

Another cardiologist, Dr. Elliot Corday, of University of California at Los Angeles, said he thought the most damaging emotion was the gnawing frustration of feeling passed over for promotion, of having one's talents unrecognized, and of watching somebody do a job you know you could do better.

Comb Worms Way In

At first sight, left, it appeared a breed of rigid worm making its way inside the bark of oak tree in Beacon Hill Park, but spot of digging uncovered common comb, right. Bark had been gradually growing around it and comb would probably have been completely enclosed in tree eventually. — (Ralph Fryer)

Loses Certification

Union Ceased To Represent

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has cancelled certification of a union local to represent employees of a Victoria laundry plant.

Certification was given to Local 918 of the International Union of Operating Engineers Jan. 13 for employees employed by Standard Steam Laundry at 811 View.

DIDN'T REPRESENT

The board said it cancelled the certification because it was satisfied the trade union had ceased to represent the employees.

In another matter before the board, Moore Whittington Lumber (Alberni) Ltd. of Victoria, appealed a decision of Oct. 5 which certified Local 1842 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America to represent glaziers and glass workers employed by the firm on the Island north of the 49th parallel excluding Ladysmith.

The board cancelled the certification because it was satisfied a collective agreement was in effect between the employer and another trade union, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Some Had Poisoned Water

City Officials Keeping Eye on 'Ice Ball' Tests

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dr. G. E. Duff-Wilson, Waterloo County medical officer, said Thursday none of the plastic "ice cubes" tested in the Kitchener-Waterloo area contained contaminated water.

Dr. Wilson said the drink coolers, manufactured in Hong Kong, were safe to use, but urged householders to discard them if they developed a leak.

He said tests are continuing in the provincial laboratory on similar plastic coolers in the shape of animals, manufactured at a different source.

In Victoria, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, is awaiting word on laboratory tests elsewhere before taking any action.

At least one major store here has withdrawn Hong Kong-made plastic ice balls from sale.

In Regina, the Saskatchewan public health department said tests on plastic drink coolers have not revealed bacterial contamination.

In a press release, the department suggested purchasers of the coolers boil them in water for 20 minutes as a safety measure. The department said tests will continue, but available information "does not warrant intervention with normal merchandising."

In Montreal, the health department banned sale of plastic coolers imported from Hong Kong after the water in some of them was found to be "highly contaminated."

Dr. Roland Lamquin said the department laboratory found 6,500,000 bacteria per cubic centimetre of water. Two of four coolers tested contained coliform bacteria, which cause intestinal infection.

Inspectors are visiting manufacturing plants there following the discovery of contaminated water in exports to North America from Indianapolis that water was used in these has been found using tap water in the coolers, were blamed for the contaminated articles.

USED TAPS

It was reported from Hong Kong Wednesday that the government is investigating manufacturing plants there following the discovery of contaminated water in exports to North America from Indianapolis that water was used in these has been found using tap water in the coolers, were blamed for the contaminated articles.

John, New Brunswick, showed they contained contaminated water.

Bardot Given Welcome Reserved for Royalty

NEW YORK—Brigitte Bardot, the pouting princess of international film, lilted into the new world amid splendor normally reserved for visiting royalty and statesmen.

Indeed, almost unnoticed at the time Brigitte arrived at Kennedy airport, British Prime Minister Wilson was boarding his plane for a flight to Washington. There was no crowd for Wilson. But BB, on what is termed her first "official" visit to the United States, was mobbed.

Brigitte governed over a bellicose press conference. Somebody yelled, "Mike, here she is!" and the 31-year-old, five-foot, six-inch French screen siren was ushered into a steamy reception room.

When she jumped up on the platform to face the horde of agitated newsmen, she said, "Allezeeeh."

Wearing a tight pink wool-knit dress that blended sumptuously with her bleached blonde hair, Brigitte was asked about her views of Viet Nam.

"We are not here to speak about politics," she said through her interpreter. "We are here to speak about Brigitte Bardot."

Why should you buy an Admiral?

Ask an electronics engineer!

"Admiral really knows how to engineer a TV chassis. Their new 23,000 volt horizontal chassis gives amazing brightness and contrast. Their new Steelbond safety tube has no annoying interface reflections. And the new 'Super Span' tuner has a pre-set fine tuning feature that really works."

Ask a TV repairman!

"I see all kinds and makes of TV but there's one thing that really stands out: Admiral owners are always bragging about how little trouble they have with their sets. And I know why it's true... Admiral has the most rigid quality control in the industry."

Ask a woman!

"I think Admiral styling is in excellent taste. Mind you, it isn't easy picking one out because Admiral has such a wide range of models to choose from. Everything from contemporary Scandinavian to Italian Provincial, beautifully veneered in Walnut or Cherrywood."

Ask a famous broadcaster about color!

Broadcaster/Journalist Gordon Sinclair has seen them all and he rates Admiral Color TV tops in reliability and color fidelity. That's why he's been an Admiral fan for nine of the eleven years we've been in the Color TV business. Says Gordon: "Admiral Color TV is the greatest. I should know, I've had one for nine trouble-free years."

A look into National... at the end of another successful year.

Mr. J. G. Hungerford, Chairman:

"Besides reflecting the progress which has been made during the past year, the statement shows the Company's strong financial position.

It is only through strength that we can expect to achieve solid and continuing growth both in assets and in profits. This is Company policy today and has been throughout our 67-year history."

Mr. Harry H. Wilson, President:

"Our financial position has never been stronger and this is the result of the close attention paid to investments both by management and by the Board of Directors. The directors of a fiduciary corporation such as National Trust have, in addition to their normal duty of representing the shareholders, the exacting responsibility of protecting the interests of the beneficiaries of estates and trusts and those who have entrusted their money to the Savings Department of the Company. Our Directors, many of whom are themselves substantial holders of National Trust stock or represent large shareholdings, take these responsibilities very seriously."

Missing

Builders Want A Group

Formation of a B.C. Construction Association has been proposed by provincial contractors, a spokesman for the Victoria Building Industries said Thursday.

The spokesman said directors of the Vancouver Construction Association and of the Heavy Construction Association recently agreed to present the proposal to their memberships.

SIMILAR ACTION

Directors of the Victoria association took similar action Wednesday.

He said other construction associations and builders' exchanges in B.C. are being encouraged to join the move.

TAKE STEP

"It was felt, however, in view of the impending labor negotiations and other major issues facing the construction industry, it was imperative the two Vancouver associations along with the exchange in Victoria take the initial step with the establishment of the new association," the spokesman said.

Mia Lops Off Allison's Long Locks

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mia Farrow, 20-year-old girl friend of crooner Frank Sinatra, snipped off her waist-long blonde hair by herself, much to the astonishment of her producers and precipitating a state of rumors.

The elfin daughter of the late writer-director John Farrow and actress Maureen O'Sullivan stars in the television series, Peyton Place, in which her corn-silk locks were a trademark.

But last Friday, she went into her dressing room and sheared them off as short as possible. It necessitated writing into the script a change in the appearance of the character Allison Mackenzie she plays. Said Monash, "I don't think there is anything in the story that she cut it off in anger for not being able to attend Frank Sinatra's birthday party Saturday night."

"She did it on an impulse, for reasons I can't fathom. It was an unprofessional act. And what she did could have had an adverse affect on the entire cast and show."

"But then she's a girl. She's young."

Wall Street Slides Off From Record

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market dallied with record highs.

The Dow Jones industrial index was ahead 3.50 to 962.21 at its best but ended with a two-point loss, throwing cold water on the averages. General Motors sank 1/4. Standard Oil lost 1/4.

With 1,444 issues traded, it was the broadest market in history. Of these, 672 advanced and 544 declined.

Mines in a Dip

VANCOUVER — Mines were weak with Dynasty the big loser at 12.25. Pyramid was 12 1/2, Ace 10, Orecan 30 and Rodstrom 1.00. Wellwood rose to 10.75. Crush to 1 1/4 and MacMillan 26.

Hayes Steel Rises

TORONTO (CP)—Industrials remained ahead in generally dull trading. Algoma rose 1/4 to 62 1/2. Hayes Steel rose to 25 1/2 and Walker-Goodman 1/4 to 35 1/2.

Banks were mixed, Toronto Dominion up 1/4 to 80 1/2 and Royal 1/4 to 71 1/2, while Imperial Bank of Commerce dipped 1/4 to 53.

Base metals eased. Western ores were off, Pacific Pete dipping 1/4 to 11 1/2. Place 4 cents to 1.47 and Canadian Export Gas 13 cents to 2.37.

Stocks Edge Higher

MONTREAL (CP)—Stocks edged higher in light trading. Moore Corp. rose 1/4 to 79. Calgary Power added 1/4 to 24 1/2 and Quebec Natural Gas 1/4 to 13 1/2. Newfoundland Light and B.C. Telephone each rose 1/4 to 11 1/2 and 70 respectively.

Consolidated rose 1/4 to 39. Duntar and Abitibi each added 1/4 to 17 1/2 and 10 1/2 respectively. In the metal section Algoma was the big winner adding 2 1/2 points to 62 1/2.

into Esquimalt drydock for the second phase of conversion by McKay-Cormack.

Upper deck will be dropped to allow for storage of about 35 trailers or 20 freight cars which will be loaded over the bow.

When completed, the craft will be able to run between Sidney and Vancouver with freight trailers or between Nanaimo and Vancouver carrying railway cars.

The CPR purchased the landing craft to carry its large fleet of trailers, now making the crossing by B.C. Ferry.

City Treats Society 'Like a Poor Cousin'

The Greater Victoria Canadian Confederation Centennial Society is being treated "like a poor country cousin," Ald. M. J. Griffin told city council Thursday.

"We've had the royal boot from City Hall," he said, "and we have no place to go."

He said council should provide the society with "suitable" quarters before it has to "end up in the back of Joe Doak's poolroom."

The society was given 45 days notice to vacate its City Hall office to make way for the new department of community planning.

Council moved to make store space in the Centennial Square arcade available to the society for three years at the usual rent, over the objections of City Manager Dennis Young.

Mr. Young said all the store space in the arcade "could have been rented five times over" if it was to be rented as office space.

Carols for famine relief are a new turn to Christmas for a group of Esquimalt children.

Wesleyan Glen Club, composed of three-to-seven-year-olds from St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church in Esquimalt, was formed and trained to sing carols for OXAM.

It will sing before the B.C. patron of Oxford Committee for Famine Relief, Lieutenant-Governor Parkes, at 3 p.m. today at Government House.

The whole concept of the arcade was to have stores that would attract large numbers of people to the square and make it an active part of our downtown area," he said.

Ald. Griffin replied that the society office, with its ticket sales, tourist information and other activity, would "generate more people than a lot of stores."

"In 1962, our centennial office at Yates and Government was a beehive."

The supplementary school building referendum of the Greater Victoria School District has still failed after a recount of ballots, returning officer Thomas Christie announced Thursday.

The referendum picked up 19 "yes" votes but still reached only a 39.5 per cent affirmative majority. Sixty per cent is needed for such bylaws.

The official recount totals 11,078 yes, 8,555 no.

A map which will also display models of the Canadian forces' latest fighting equipment will be on display at the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce exhibition in May.

The 51-by-35-foot map will show Canada's military installations and models of the latest in aircraft, ships, armored vehicles and missiles. It is to be exhibited in the centre of the Curling Club.

And for a topper, the Jaycees are hoping they will be able to show a real Gemini capsule. Negotiations to make this possible are still going on.

Premier Bennett will head government dignitaries at acceptance ceremonies for the Bowen Queen in the Inner Harbor at 3 p.m. today.

The 22nd ship in the British Columbia Ferry Service will be turned over by the builders Victoria Machinery Depot.

The Bowen Queen will carry 30 cars and 240 passengers and go into service immediately on the Bowen Island-Horseshoe Bay run.

Fireman chopped their way through a roof to get at a fire at R. A. Green Lumber Co. Ltd., 2891 Douglas, Wednesday night.

The firemen managed to control the fire on the top floor and prevent it from spreading. Doors, plywood and lumber were burned and other goods damaged by water that the firemen poured on for an hour.

No estimate of the damage has been made yet. The fire began in the motor of an electric saw.

Rockland Area

Building Curb Revision Urged

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood suggested to city council Thursday it may be time to revise council policy on the single-family dwelling restriction in the Rockland Avenue area.

He made the statement as council agreed to a planning and advisory committee recommendation to reject a request by Boorman Investments for a zoning change to multiple dwelling for two apartment buildings.

"To rezone this site would create a precedent which would open the way for other apartment blocks, and one which council would find difficult to overcome," the commission said in its recommendation.

"The commission does not recommend any change in its planning at this time."

Aldermen Edgewood and Robert Baird disagreed.

Said Ald. Baird: "There may be a lot of people who want to live in Victoria but can't because there is no accommodation."

Ald. Edgewood suggested the engineering department check water and sewer services in the Rockland area to see whether they are adequate for apartment development.

"We should ask ourselves if this is the time to take a new look at Rockland," he said.

Mothers. Now an Effective Cough Syrup That Children Love to Take

Pleasant-tasting Jack & Jill Cough Syrup with added Vitamin C. Works wonders—children love it.

One of the most disturbing sounds a mother can hear is her child coughing at night. A nagging cough from a cold seems so much worse when it's invading a child. The throat membranes of children are more sensitive, more easily hurt.

This is why W. K. Buckley spent years perfecting his special cough syrup for children. His time and trouble have been well rewarded. Today, Jack & Jill Cough Syrup helps more children's coughs than any other product in Canada. There are a number of very good reasons why Jack & Jill Cough Syrup is preferred by most Canadian Mothers.

The carefully selected ingredients in Jack & Jill Cough Syrup are double-acting. They relieve the congestion that causes so much trouble, and they relieve irritated throat membranes, making it easier for the child to swallow. Jack & Jill eases the irritation and lets your child rest comfortably. Children like Jack & Jill. The mild, wild-cherry taste gives this cough syrup the pleasant flavour that children like so well. Jack & Jill Cough Syrup is both a treat and a treatment. And every dose of Jack & Jill contains added Vitamin C—the vitamin children specially need when they are feverish.

Jack & Jill Cough Syrup for children is sold everywhere. Ask for it by name.

Views of Sport

By Red Smith

At first blush there is something repugnant in the idea of an employment agency whose business is getting athletic scholarships for high school graduates. But perhaps it's no more than healthy realism. If it is proper for a college to provide a scholar with board, room, tuition, laundry and walk-around money because he is seven feet tall or can run a hook-around pattern, then there's nothing sinister about an organization set up to help the culture foundries locate deserving candidates.

The operation is a concern that calls itself College Admission for Student Athletes. It is run by two faculty members at Eastern District High in Brooklyn. For a fee of $50 per sport or $250 for 11 sports, they will furnish scouting reports on needy youths in the New York area who know something about running interference but thirst for wider knowledge.

Because business hasn't been so hot, the kids are asked to pay a $15 registration fee to help defray expenses. B. M. Cusumano, the father of C.A.S.A., blames Walter Byers and Asa Bushnell for the reluctance of colleges to get their money up. The executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference have been sticky about the Cusumano recruiting service.

Benecolent Recruiters

Presumably Byers and Bushnell feel that colleges in the market for muscle should dig up their own prospects. Certainly they cannot be unaware of what goes on among schools in their organizations. Indeed, just last Saturday on the NCAA's own football telecast, Bud Wilkinson, speaking as an old and highly successful recruiter for Oklahoma, talked eloquently over a national network on the spiritual benefits of recruiting.

Before coach Wilkinson succumbed to an urge to be known as Senator Wilkinson, he had boxer clubs organized into a state-wide posse that would have had armed guards patrolling every highway if some high school halfback from Ponca City tried to slip out of Oklahoma.

Similarly, when Paul Brown occupied the chair of Applied Violence at Ohio State, every high school coach from Cincinnati to Ashtabula was a scout pledged to deliver his meatiest pupils direct to Columbus.

These aren't isolated cases. No school that is rich in athletic material gets that way by accident. The only discernible difference between the scouting systems organized and operated by individual colleges and the service offered by C.A.S.A. is the fee, and that difference may be an illusion. Not all bird dogs for temples of learning work for the love of alma mater alone.

Meat Market

Any qualified student, whether an athlete or not, who needs financial help to get an education should be helped. All respectable colleges subscribe to this principle. Unfortunately, colleges that go out looking for student-athletes do not go out looking for 98-pound weaklings, regardless of their IQ.

A Jimmy Brown finishing high school in Manhasset will have 45 colleges bidding for the privilege of preparing him for the Cleveland Browns. A four-eyed kid with a genius rating and deficient biceps has to beg for admission. In the American educational system, a large student who can run fast and maintain a C average in marketing is more to be desired than a small, slow student who might some day find a cure for cancer.

Thirteen years ago a committee representing the American Council on Education called attention to this situation and deplored it as "institutional hypocrisy." The committee offered a list of recommendations for a sane athletic policy.

Among other things, it urged that practice and competition in any sport be confined to the sport's proper season—Sept. 1 to Dec. 1 for football—and called for the elimination of all post-season games.

People in Glass Houses

Two years after the report was issued, Michigan State played in the Rose Bowl. Two years later the Michigan State team was in Pasadena again. This winter Michigan State's unbeaten Big Ten champions will play another return engagement.

Michigan State is singled out in this connection for only one reason. The chairman of the committee of educators who in 1952 demanded abolition of bowl games was Dr. John A. Hannah, then and now president of Michigan State.

Because the American Council on Education has no police force, its committee called upon the NCAA to enforce compliance with the athletic policy it outlined. Since then the NCAA has been giving official sanction to bowl games, including such cultural exercises as the Liberty Bowl and the Gotham Bowl.

Maybe there is something reprehensible about a clearing-house of information on high school athletes, which is the idea behind C.A.S.A. If so, Byers and Bushnell probably ought to shy a rock at it. But the whole system of higher education is a glass house.

Chiefs Get Army Short of Troops

It will be a shorthanded Army club that faces Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs in tonight's Esquimalt Hockey League game at the Sports Centre.

Four Army players received game misconducts last Friday, along with five Navy men, in a battle that ended in a 12-5 victory for Army.

CAN GO AHEAD

Pontiacs are currently tied for first place with University of Victoria, but hold one game in hand over the Vikings. Army, which has played only two games, has a 1-1 record and shares third place with Navy, which is now 1-4.

Actually, the game is the second half of a doubleheader. At 7:45, the show opens with a game between old-timers teams from Navy and civilian teams.

Carnera Has Chips—To Sell

By DENNIS TRISTRAM

GLENDALE (CNS) — Primo Carnera, the world heavyweight boxing champion of 30 years ago, has bounced right out of the ring for good and into a Glendale liquor store.

The hulking, good-natured ex-boxer and wrestler now does his fancy footwork behind the counter of his combination liquor store and Italian delicatessen here with his wife, Pina, acting as his second.

Wrestling has kept 6-foot, 6-inch Carnera in just about the same shape he was when he knocked out Jack Sharkey and claimed the world title in 1933. He weighs between 258 and 262 pounds.

When the title was snatched from him in 1934 by Max Baer he weighed 263½. When questioned about his age, the former wrestler threw a hammerlock on the subject but finally gave a yes-no nod to a guess of 55 years.

In 1939, five years after he lost the title, Carnera was touring the border towns of Italy as an attraction at the openings of supermarkets. He met Pina, who was working as a postal clerk in the Yugoslavian town of Gorizia.

At first sight of that meeting, Mrs. Carnera said:

"I met him after he was a champion, when he was just a human being. I saw my mother in his eyes and knew he was the man for me."

Pina, who acts as Primo's business assistant, plans to make a showplace of their store by displaying the former champion's trophies which are housed in their various Italian estates.

"We used to travel back and forth between the United States and Italy, spending three years here and three years there. We have a pink and grey marble mansion, two houses and a farm and forest land in the province of Udine. The mansion was a popular attraction with U.S. soldiers during World War II," Mrs. Carnera said.

The Carneras have two children, Humberto, 25, and Jean Marie Alderson, 20. Humberto is a medical student at University of California at Los Angeles and Jean is married to an electronics engineer. All are U.S. citizens.

ONE A YEAR Carnera's three most important fights came almost exactly a year apart and all were in New York. They began with Carnera taking the title by stopping Jack Sharkey with a right uppercut in the sixth round at Long Island City Bowl on June 28, 1933.

Big fight No. 2 came when Max Baer, boxing's clown prince, floored Primo 12 times in the 1934 bout which ended with Carnera losing the title in the 11th round.

No. 3 came in 1935, when Joe Louis stopped a comeback try by the ex-champ in the sixth round on June 25.

When Primo won the championship, a crowd of 31,733 persons paid a gross gate of $198,000. Carnera's cut was 10 per cent of the net, $16,377. For his future defense against Baer, the crowd numbered 36,000 and paid $428,000 or which $122,782 went to Carnera.

As a wrestler, Carnera was especially popular in South

NHL Leaders No Longer Alone

Leafs Join Wings in Pursuit

Detroit Red Wings' current run at the leaders has tightened up the National Hockey League, and now Toronto Maple Leafs seem to be running right along with them.

After ending the Wings' victory streak at seven Wednesday, the Leafs moved into Montreal last night and upset the league-leading Canadiens, 3-2.

Canadiens, who have made a habit of late-game comebacks, spotted Leafs a two-goal lead entering the third period, then came within an eyelash of getting a draw.

Yvan Cournoyer scored his ninth power play goal of the season at 12:24 and the Leafs had another power play going in the last minute. But veteran Johnny Bower made two big

'Fledgling Fagin' Given 14 Months

Roy MacLaren, described by Magistrate William Ostler as a "fledgling Fagin," was sentenced to 14 months in the Young Offenders Unit for his part in nine break-ins.

Magistrate Ostler also sentenced MacLaren to an indefinite term not to exceed six months after MacLaren had pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Tuesday.

NEEDED GUIDANCE

He said MacLaren obviously needed a period of guidance, training and discipline.

MacLaren supplied transportation for a group of juveniles involved in these crimes, Magistrate Ostler said.

MacLaren was sentenced in the morning on six charges and in the afternoon pleaded guilty to three more.

ENTERED SCHOOL

RCMP Cpl. George Meyer said MacLaren and three juveniles entered Belmont High School Dec. 7. Several rooms were forcibly entered and desks ransacked, Cpl. Meyer said.

About 30 cents was missing. On the same evening, MacLaren drove the juveniles to Gibson's Shopping Centre, Jordan River, where goods valued at about $80 were stolen.

Jordan "Liver Shell" Service was entered that same evening, Cpl. Meyer said. Goods valued at $68 were stolen.

MacLaren again supplied the transportation, Cpl. Meyer said.

MAGISTRATE SHOCKED

Magistrate Ostler said after the three charges were read: "It's really a question whether I should increase your sentence in view of this series of very serious indictable offences."

He decided not to, however, and added that he thought MacLaren could react favorably to training.

Ronald Albert Thody's conduct in his own home, with his two children in bed and his wife at work, was "disgusting, disgraceful and lecherous," Magistrate Ostler said.

He found the truck driver guilty of indecent assault on a female and guilty of attempted indecent assault on a female.

The offences took place in the man's home at 607 Mary when two teen-age girls were baby-sitting.

Dermot Owen-Flood argued for the defence that there was consent, but Magistrate Ostler replied that what consent there was, was the result of "false and fraudulent representations."

Thody had a record for uttering and false pretences and was remanded in custody to Dec. 23 for a pre-sentence report.

WANTED TREATMENT

A man who asked for a longer sentence so he could receive treatment for alcoholism was given it by Magistrate Ostler.

Stanley Lien had pleaded guilty to vagrancy at an earlier hearing.

Magistrate Ostler said: "It is very commendable that you feel that way. It involves a longer sentence than I would normally impose for this offence."

He sentenced Lien to four months in jail, with the recommendation that he serve it at an institution where alcoholics are treated.

A submission that a man cannot be charged with breaking and entering if a window is left partly open was rejected by Magistrate Ostler.

Kenneth Cox made the submission on behalf of William Baxter had been driving Pike's car, court was told.

Evidence was heard that a rear window at the shop was open prior to the break-in.

Magistrate Ostler said the law read "through a permanent or temporary opening."

"I think a window partly open must be a temporary opening," he said.

Magistrate Ostler ruled that the defence had a case to meet and adjourned the trial to today.

Leo Pike, 955 Goldstream, was acquitted on a charge of mischief involving damage to 10 highway signs in the Colwood-Langford area Oct. 22.

A second man, John Baxter, 1111 Neil, was fined by Magistrate J. A. Byers at an earlier hearing after pleading guilty to causing wilful damage.

Pike said he was drunk at the time of the offence and

Campbell Quits Feud

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell has quietly bowed out of the Capital Region hospitals feud Thursday, firing a parting shot on the way to Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay.

Reeve Cox maintains that two per cent of B.C.'s sales tax should be used for hospital purposes but isn't because this field is covered by the Canadian medicare plan and B.C.'s mini-medical scheme.

But about the recently defeated referendum for financing construction of additional Christmas, and I realize his hospital facilities, he said Mr. constance is bothering him."

As he was going to return it, Munro said, he was approached by Mrs. Campbell.

Norma Cuzens, address unavailable, was remanded to Dec. 23 for a pre-sentence report after she pleaded guilty to stealing goods worth $15.22 from Woodward's, 3125 Douglas, Dec. 10.

Munro was found guilty of theft under $50 and was remanded until Wednesday for a pre-sentence report.

Mrs. Margaret Campbell, a store detective for Woodward's, said she saw Munro place a sweater in a shopping bag and leave without paying for it.

Munro denied the theft and said that the person he was

For Depositors in Trust Companies

More Government Protection Sought

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Depositors with trust companies in Canada are not getting enough protection according to J. G. Hungerford, chairman of National Trust Company.

He told shareholders at the annual meeting Thursday there should be a uniform federal provincial law covering all trust companies across Canada, and he urged Ottawa and the provinces to get together without delay.

"The problem needs immediate attention and cannot wait independent solutions in 10 provinces," he said.

He suggested the provinces should turn over regulation of trust companies to the federal superintendent of insurance.

BIG BRIDGE YEAR

Greatly improved results for the year ended Oct. 31 are reported by Dominion Bridge.

Preliminary unaudited figures give an increase of 55 per cent in net profit to $7,077,000 ($2.72) from $4,553,000 ($1.76) in the previous fiscal year.

SALES UP

Sales were up 15 per cent at $128,034,000.

Heaviest demand for new work came from B.C., Ontario and Quebec said M. McMurray, president. Contracts booked were up 40 per cent on last year.

Promoter's Bail
Termed Too High

TORONTO (CP)—Counsel for Max Isaacs, 54, former Montreal industrialist, Thursday called bail of $50,000 "prohibitive" when his client appeared in court and was remanded until Dec. 23.

Isaacs, arrested in Vancouver Tuesday, is charged with defrauding the public by manipulating stock prices on Canadian exchanges. Officials said more than $1,000,000 is involved.

Police said most of the investigation is connected with the stock trading of the SKD Manufacturing Co. of Amherstburg, Ont.

The charge alleges the offences occurred between 1961 and 1962 and involved dealings through 47 brokerage houses.

Chronic Care Plan a 'Mockery'

Provincial Liberal leader Ray has assailed the provincial government's decision to enlarge chronic care program as "a B.C.H.S. to cover patients in non-profit homes and hospitals, and in a press release Thursday, said the scheme should be made available to every person in need of chronic care — be it rehabilitation, medical supervision, or long-term custodial care.

RECRUITS LAMARSH

He also recruited federal Health and Welfare Minister Judy LaMarsh to refute a continuing suggestion by B.C.

Fishery Expert Appointed

B.C.'s chief fisheries biologist, Stuart Smith, has been appointed director of fish and wildlife for Alberta.

Mr. Smith, 44, who lives at 1833 Beach Drive, has been chief of the B.C. fisheries management division since 1963. He takes up his new appointment early in the new year.

A Kamloops man, Mr. Smith joined B.C.'s fish and game branch in 1950. He obtained his BA in zoology and MA in fisheries at UBC.

During the war he was a flying instructor and bomber pilot in Ceylon with the RCAF.

Gifts Total $143,331

Charity donations totalling $143,331 by the estate of Thomas S. McPherson were reported to city council Thursday.

The donations: Community Chest, $35,707; YM-YWCA, $35,707; Salvation Army, $14,283; Red Cross, Protestant Orphans Homes, Queen Alexandra Soldiers, Goodwill Enterprises, Boy Scouts, CNR, Girl Guides, Victoria Symphony, all $7,141; Victoria Columbia Lodge No. 1, AF and AM, $500.

minister of health that Ottawa is responsible for the lack of chronic care coverage in this province.

Miss LaMarsh has told Mr. Perreault by letter that inclusion of the services announced recently by her provincial counterpart, Eric Martin, has been open to every province since inception of the B.C. Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act in 1957.

In fact, every other province except B.C. had included such long-term care facilities under its hospital insurance program, the letter added.

The federal minister said Mr. Martin's suggestion that "negotiations have been successfully completed with the federal government" to extend coverage for long-term care gave a misleading impression.

She said practice for the provincial government to provide a list of the facilities in mind which come under hospital insurance legislation, and the federal government would then agree to share in the costs of the insured services.

Professionalism Demanding

By BILL STAVDAL

Professionalism in show business ice skating is hanging upside-down for 15 minutes daily to ease the pain of a slipped disc. Professionalism is paying $120 for a pair of skates with blades fitted to your own body balance. It's foregoing food when you are hungry, because you know a full stomach makes a bad performance.

LOOKING BUBBLY

And it's often a matter of looking bubbly in a Sunday show when you're dragged out after three performances on Saturday. Being a pro is tough and demanding, but without it nobody comes to watch.

Bobby Specht, performance director of Ice Capades which is now at Memorial Arena, spent 20 years as a star skater. Today, scanning his performers with a critical eye each day, he says he can tell the mood of a skater two strides after he takes to the ice.

SOMETIMES SURPRISED

"I can tell if he's sluggish or alert, groggy or bright," says Mr. Specht.

"When youngsters come for auditions I can predict their performance just by the look of their skates and the way they lace them.

"Of course, I get surprised now and then."

SPECIAL BOARD

On opening night Wednesday clown Freddie Tremblor missed one of his acts because of a painfully slipped spinal disc, but he came out for the second act. Only the experienced eyes of old troupers like Mr. Specht could tell Freddie was in discomfort.

The clown has rigged a special board from which he hangs for 15 minutes to enable him to go on.

Three shows a week Mr. Specht stands offstage timing the two-hour and 15-minute show down to the second.

He does it to ensure the pace doesn't vary from the standard set during the months-long rehearsals that produce the show.

For about $120 a week a girl in the ballet line submits herself to discipline that in some ways matches that of an army camp.

Rehearsals are held almost every day so no one gets sloppy. Even the stars rehearse, learning as many as three acts besides their own in case they have to stand in for a sick or absent performer.

FATIGUE CONCEALED

The fatigue and sluggishness of travel must be cast off — or at least concealed — every time a fanfare sounds.

The second meal of the day comes at 4 p.m., which means dinner at the 8 p.m. curtain. The big meal is generally after the evening show.

Even a hard-earned vacation must be paid for in sore leg muscles when performers get back on the ice. The reason is that ankle muscles which provide balance deteriorate without constant skating, explains Mr. Specht.

BIG INVESTMENT

Just to get a place in a show like Ice Capades requires an investment of years of practice and thousands in training costs. Line captain Joy Weber estimates her parents paid $10,000 for her coaching.

At certain time, professionalism shows through.

Says Mr. Specht: "Lots of times they carry through on nerve alone."

Specht maintains pace

Grenade

Terror Hits Again

SAIGON (AP)—A Viet Cong agent carried a reign of terror into Saigon for the fourth straight day today, hurling a grenade into a truckload of American soldiers and wounding 12.

The latest attack occurred only a half block from Thursday's bombing of a U.S. Army compound. The terrorist again escaped.

The current terrorist campaign, apparently to mark the Viet Cong's fifth anniversary Dec. 20, is expected to last well into the Christmas season.

In the air, it was disclosed Thursday that Mig jets have been quietly testing U.S. air defenses in South Viet Nam.

Brakes Slip

House Hit By Car

A runaway car crashed into the side of a house Wednesday night after it slipped its brakes. Police said the car was parked in the garage of the owner, Samuel Gallagher, 2933 Graham. It went through a corner property, damaged a fence and crashed through another fence before coming to a stop at the side of the house at 2870 Graham.

Eighteen-year-old Brian Barnett received a fractured wrist in a collision at Pandora and Camosun Wednesday night. Mr. Barnett, 1746 Taylor, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and discharged. Police said Mr. Barnett's car was in collision with a car driven by Kim Eggington, 315 St. Charles.

Hydro Pension Approved

A new pension plan for employees of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has been approved by the government.

The new scheme will be integrated with the Canada Pension Plan when agreement is reached with Ottawa about extension of the national plan to provincial civil servants and employees of Crown corporations.

A provincial cabinet order-in-council Thursday gave B.C. Hydro permission to establish and maintain a fund for payment of superannuation allowances for directors and employees.

SEVERAL PLANS

Death or disability allowances will also be payable under the Hydro pension plan.

A Hydro official said the Crown corporation inherited several pension plans from the former B.C. Electric Co. and one from the former B.C. Power Commission when the new corporation was created in 1961.

MANDATORY

The new plan will be mandatory for all new employees, effective last Oct. 1, but most of Hydro's 6,000 employees in British Columbia will have the option of transferring to the new plan if it is of more benefit to them than the ones in which they now participate.

Deadline for transferring to the new pension plan will be 1, 1967, the Hydro official said.

Pearkes At Party

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes and civic leaders of Greater Victoria will attend the annual Victoria Chamber of Commerce Party today.

It is expected 400 members of the chamber will be at the party to be held in the main ballroom of the Empress Hotel from noon to 2 p.m.

Earl Dicknoether, manager of the chamber, said this year's surprise entertainment would feature performers from Las Vegas who have appeared on the Ed Sullivan and Lawrence Welk Shows.

Farewell For Two

Wilson:

'Lamb Among The Wolves'

Mayor Wilson thanked council Thursday for its help and consideration, "particularly when I moved in as a new boy four years ago, a lamb among the wolves."

In his brief words of farewell, the mayor said everything accomplished had been the result of teamwork.

Thursday's meeting was Mayor Wilson's last.

Mooney:

'Gained More Than Anyone'

"In the 13 years I've been on city council, I have gained more than anyone," Ald. Millard Mooney observed at his last council meeting Thursday.

Ald. Mooney, defeated in the mayoralty race Dec. 11, is retiring from council.

"Your service over many years has been much appreciated and will be long remembered," said Mayor Wilson.

Garden Complex For Begbie Faces Close Look

City council has agreed to study closely a proposed garden apartment development for the Begbie-Vining area after a concerted drive by residents to kill the project.

A public hearing at City Hall Thursday was adjourned so the advisory planning committee and zoning board could study the proposal and report to council.

SEKS PERMISSION

Edca Holdings Ltd., is seeking permission to build a 78-unit garden apartment complex on Begbie near Vining.

A petition against the move was signed by 106 property owners and 26 residents of the area.

TRAFFIC HAZARD
They contended the development would create a traffic hazard, be an added burden to already overcrowded schools, tax water and sewer systems and would soon become a slum.

Letters to council, which took the assistant city clerk 40 minutes to read, said "overcrowding" would result in "poor mental health" of children and juvenile delinquency.

TOWN HOUSES
Edca president C. R. Sandey said his company is not planning "garden apartments" but "town houses."

These would be in the $225 to $400-a-month rent range, he said. They are intended for business and professional people whose children have grown up and left home.

DEAL WITH FACTS
When Mr. Sandey said the firm would not necessarily allow children or pets in the units Mayor Wilson interjected, "We must deal with the facts, not with what is intended."

One man who signed the petition opposing the development said he had changed his mind.

SCARED PEOPLE
"The term 'garden apartments' maybe scared some people," he said. "I know it scared me."

"But if the residents of the area could actually hear all the plans, they might want the town houses."

Clinic Gains 376 Pints

HMC Dockyard donors gave 376 pints of blood Thursday at a one-day Red Cross clinic there.

It brought the total for a four-day drive in the city this week to 1,115 donors, which was termed by a Red Cross official "an excellent response."

New City Office

Cost of Space Raises Brows

The $7,050 cost of creating office space for the coming community development department at City Hall raised eyebrows at council Thursday.

"I suggest we take a very close look at these figures," Ald. A. W. Toone said. "They seem a little high."

'MORE THAN HIGH'
"I think it's more than high," Ald. Geoffrey Edgell added.

"Are we going to be faced with heavy costs as well as staff additions for the new department?"

'DELIBERATE'
"We were assured when we discussed this in committee there would be no requirement for extra staff for this department," Ald. Toone said. "Now I understand two draftsmen are to be added."

City Manager Dennis Young told council the cost estimate is deliberately high "because of our unfortunate experience of having to come back to council asking for more money."

Constable Treated For Injuries

A city policeman was treated and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital after a traffic accident Thursday.

Constables D. E. Sepka and Ivan Purdy of Victoria police were travelling west on Bay on an emergency call at 2:01 p.m.

They pulled out to pass a car driven by Washington Preston, 1229 Glyn. The Preston car started to make a left turn onto Oregon, and to avoid a collision, Constable Purdy swerved to the right.

The police car struck Bay's north curb, went out of control, struck a chain-link fence on the south side of Bay, and came to rest 15 feet inside the Bay Street playlot.

Const. Sepka was treated for knee injuries.

Marina Planned At Pedder Bay

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Outdoors Editor

The $1,000,000 Oak Bay Marina complex has purchased 20 acres of waterfront at the head of Pedder Bay and plans to build a year-round marina there to tie in with the Oak Bay operations.

Oak Bay Marina president Bob Wright announced the deal Thursday night, but made no disclosures as to price. The property was acquired from J. C. De Wilde of Jayritz Nursery, who has been operating a small marina service.

Mr. Wright says extent of his new operation will depend upon his obtaining foreshore rights.

SPORTSMEN

Plans call for a marina development aimed at sports fishermen, whereas the Oak Bay operation is aimed at catering to the open boating public.

OPEN DAILY

Development will not be on the magnitude of Oak Bay Marina, but it will be a daylight-to-dark operation, seven days a week.

A public road into the Pedder Bay operation will be built to highway standards. Base of operations will be from an office on the waterfront.

HARBOR DREDGING

Plans include some dredging of the harbor to provide boat moorage and boat launching at all tides.

An improved triple-lane launching ramp is included, ample parking facilities will be provided and a coffee and tackle shop will be built.

PLASTIC FLOATS

New foam plastic floats will be built for small boat wharfage, and a fleet of sturdy rental boats with outboard motors is planned.

Guide service will be available, and Mr. Wright plans to use Pedder Bay as an out-station for his party fishing boat, Mv. Lakewood.

Future plans call for a tenting and trailer site.

Mr. Wright said he plans no disturbance to the use of Pedder Bay by sports anglers, but noted he will have to clear away some of the red tape before construction of new marina facilities can start.

TO START IN SPRING

New construction is expected to start in the spring of 1966 and not later than the fall.

Pedder Bay, a narrow inlet between Race Rocks and William Head, is the only all-weather protected harbor between Victoria and Sooke. In some years—and as a matter of fact right at the moment it offers some tremendous salmon fishing.

STRICTER RULES

Mr. Wright says he feels that as soon as stricter regulations are imposed on the commercial netting fleet at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait, Pedder Bay will get salmon fishing comparable to the great runs of Campbell River.

National defence property straddles Pedder Inlet on both sides and the waterfront property acquired by Mr. Wright is the only private waterfront available.

IN DANGER

"If we hadn't bought it, it would have been in danger of being sold for private development, and those fishing waters would have been lost to sports fishermen in small boats," he said.

Worker Breaks Heels In Two-Storey Fall

A construction worker fell 18 feet from the second storey of the University of Victoria social sciences building at 3:50 p.m. Thursday.

Joseph Zsigray, 41, of 1407 Fort, broke his heels and a lumbar vertebra in the fall.

'Insufficient' Though It Is ...

Teachers' Pay Up 5.4 Per Cent

Salary increases averaging 5.4 per cent have been awarded to Greater Victoria School District teachers by an arbitration board.

School board spokesmen expressed satisfaction with the award following its announcement Thursday. The president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association said the raise is insufficient, but that the teachers will accept it.

The settlement adds $378,830 to the district's 1965 teacher salary bill, which is $7,192,897. It works out to 1.48 mills on the district's 1965 taxable assessment.

Under the new pay scale, a teacher with one year of university education plus one of teacher training will receive $4,000 annually as a starting salary, rising in $230 increments to a maximum of $6,300 after 10 years.

A teacher with a university degree plus his teacher training year will now receive $5,500 to start, with annual $285 increments until he reaches $9,205 after 13 years' experience.

Teachers with additional university qualifications, such as a master's degree, can go as high as $10,130 with 14 years' experience.

Biggest single group among the district's 1,023 teachers are those with four years of university education plus a year of teacher training.

Had Asked for 10 Per Cent

When negotiations opened in October, the teachers asked 10 per cent average salary boosts. The board replied with an offer of less than what the teachers sought.

John Porteous, chairman of the school board, called the settlement "very good, considering the demands we had from the teachers."

George Curran, chairman of the board's finance committee, said the settlement wasn't much different from what the board offered during conciliation.

Ray Wunderlich, president of the teachers' association, said he was "very disappointed."

During negotiations the teachers presented statistics indicating a decline in the proportion of highly-qualified teachers. They used this information to bolster their argument for better salaries which presumably would hold good teachers here.

Victoria insurance agent William McColl headed the three-man arbitration board. The school board's nominee was Dr. I. D. Pal, who dissented on the salary scale.

Sanich teachers settled in November for a 5.7 per cent raise, and Sooke teachers will go to arbitration Dec. 29.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

The short, wintry days of December bring their own joys and most certainly a sharpening appreciation of the warmth of the home and the hearth.

But there is another kind of warmth, that of the spirit, of close family ties and friends.

This was the sort of warmth one felt in historic little St. Mark's Church on Salt Spring Island last Saturday.

The occasion was the christening of the fair, little Naomi Elizabeth Stone whose roots go deep into the little church. It was her great grandfather's church and the Rev. E. F. Wilson was the first resident vicar of the parish.

And all the little principal's maternal family have been christened and married in this same church.

Archdeacon R. B. Horsfield gave a simple, friendly talk explaining the christening and the bringing of the child into the church before conducting the actual ceremony.

Naom Elizabeth was not in the least fazed by the attention to herself and when the Archdeacon had finished the service she reached up and patted him on the cheek. (I refuse to believe she was reaching for his glasses.)

Water from the River Jordan for the christening was sent from the baby's paternal grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Stone of Toronto.

And the robe worn by Elizabeth was her paternal grandmother's.

Both Elizabeth's nearly five year old sister, Diana, and brother Charles, three, had been christened in this same dress. Both sister and brother were there and most interested in everything that went on.

Elizabeth's parents are Lieut. Cmdr. R. F. Stone, RN and Mrs. Stone. Cmdr. Stone has recently completed a posting at Norfolk, Va., (where Elizabeth was born). The family are staying this month with Mrs. Stone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Shove at their home, Galilee at Ganges.

Early in January the Stones will go east to Halifax.

It was at Galilee that the reception was held after the ceremony and where Mr. Donald Corbett of Campbell River proposed the toast to the newly christened baby.

Godparents are Capt. W. T. Dovel, USN and Mrs. Dovel of Norfolk, Va., for whom the baby's great uncle, P. D. Crofton of Victoria stood proxy. Mrs. Charles Stone of Seattle and Miss Daphne Corbett of Campbell River.

Other relatives and friends going to Salt Spring for this important event were Mrs. Donald Corbett and Frank Corbett from Campbell River, Mrs. P. D. Crofton with Kerry and Barry Crofton, Mr. Ian Macintosh and Robert Morris from Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone and Ned Stone, Seattle; Mrs. Peter Bowfield, Shawnigan Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Springfield and family from Duncan.

I always feel a special sympathy for the people who have birthdays close to Christmas. Although there is compensation in that it is the party time of the year and even if you don't have an actual birthday party of your own there are always plenty of places to go.

However, when Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Leechman entertain on Monday they will be celebrating Douglas' birthday.

Winter Wonderland

The Quarterdeck at Royal Roads will be turned into a veritable Winter Wonderland this evening for the annual Christmas Ball.

Group Capt. D. B. Wartick, Commandant, and Mrs. Wartick and Cadet Wing Cmdr. L. M. Yule and Miss Wendy McGregor will be the receiving line.

The Naden Band will play for the dancing and a buffet supper will be served.

Guests of Cadets will be Misses Marlene Gandy, Nancy Gommerson, Linda McDonald, Lois Iverson, Patsy Fye, Nancy Gommerson, Rosemary Bevers, Judy Davis, Wendy Scott, Nancy Walker, Gayle Ellard, Cherry Landy, Wendy Young, Arlene Pattle, Marcia Fraser.

Attendants Dressed In Red and Gold

An attractive arrangement of large white and gold chrysanthemums was on the altar at St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church for the double-ring ceremony uniting in marriage Pamela Elizabeth Deelman and Mr. Grant Robert Craigmyle.

Rev. J. E. Roberts officiated at the pretty evening wedding for the daughter of Mrs. Deelman, 240 Douglas Street, and the son of Mrs. M. C. Leheim, 2364 Millstream Road, and the late Mr. James Craigmyle.

The bride was lovely in a corded taffeta gown on train, featuring a Chantilly lace bodice with lily point sleeves and scalloped neckline. Two panels in matching lace enhanced the front of the full, floor-length skirt. The bride's illusion net veil misted from a lace Juliet cap trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a spray of gardenias and freesia on a white bible, gift of the groom.

Mr. William V. Putman gave his niece in marriage.

Red and gold crystal charm gowns featuring bouffant skirts and back floating panels held by self-fabric roses, were worn

Bride-Elect Honored

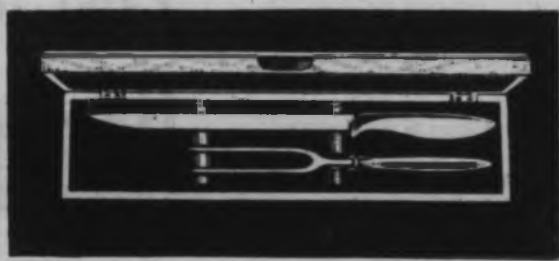

Miss Allene Griffiths whose marriage takes place on Saturday was honored at a shower held at the home of Mrs. L. Stalker, attended by staff members of Department of Lands, Forests and Water Resources.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Some of the women who write to you asking for advice should look in a mirror.

I'm a bachelor, 38, college educated, successful in business and I enjoy life. I have a city apartment, a country home, a new car, a boat and two or three dates a week. And I think I know something about babes.

I've made a list of negative attributes—let's call them the Dirty Dozen. Print them if you think they will help.

I can't stand women who:—Smoke on the street.

—Smoke while driving a car.
—Drink too much and get loud and sloppy.

—Wear stretch pants and shoes that don't hide the foot strap.

—Forget to shave their legs.

—Wear three-story hair-dos and spray them with cement.

—Paint themselves up like for Halloween.

—Make up their faces and forget they have necks.

—Wear high heels with slacks and shorts.

—Chew gum with their mouths open.

—Wear girdles that make them look like ironing boards from the rear. — CHICAGO BACHELOR

Dear Ann: Here's your Dirty Dozen, and now, if any of you babes have a list, I just might print it.

Dear Ann Landers: I was intrigued by the remarks of the woman who said she had lost her son when he married. He went over to his wife's side of the family.

This is right down my alley because I have four married sons and I haven't lost any of them. Each of my sons has a lovely wife and wonderful children.

When I invite them to my home for dinner I ask which evening suits them best and I offer them a choice of three. I don't allow my daughter-in-law to bring food or help with the dishes. They are guests in my home and I want them to enjoy themselves and consider dinner at my place a night out.

I believe every wife should learn to manage her own family affairs. I have never offered any advice to my sons' wives and I can't recall that any of them ever asked me for any. My system has worked beautifully and it should work well for others. If you print this letter please don't give any clues to my identity. I don't want to brag. Just sign me—PERMANENT MOTHER OF FOUR SONS

Dear Permanent Mother: I'm sorry you won't let me print your initials. If anyone deserves the right to brag, Honey, it's you. But here's your letter and mum's the word. (P.S. I'll bet you're the best mother-in-law in Garden Grove, California.)

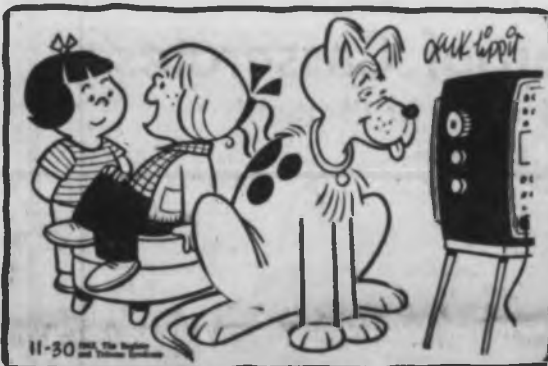

Confidential to Kissin' Kin In a Dilemma: First cousins are not permitted to marry in some states. I would be more concerned with his excessive drinking, however, than with the fact that you are cousins. It may be his stomach, dearie, but if you marry a boozier it will be your headache.

Antimacassar crocheting details the neckline and sleeves of these two "Granny" dresses by Jack Posluns of Toronto. Straight from an old tintype are the slotted velvet ribbons and bows. Pretty Home Wedding

The Fernwood Road home of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Buckle was the setting for a pretty ceremony uniting in marriage Marjorie Porter and Mr. Raymond Daly. Rev. David Metzger officiated at the recent wedding.

Mr. Raymond Sauriol was best man. Mr. G. D. Buckle, was usher.

Following a brief honeymoon on Piers Island the newlyweds are now making their home at 30 Hibberson Crescent. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. G. Alford, Saskatoon, and Mrs. S. Richardson, Calgary, Alta.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alford, Saskatoon, Sask., and the late Mr. H. G. Alford, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Josephine Daly, 1250 Fairfield Road.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Robert Porter, wore a winter white brocade dress in cocktail length. Her accessories were brown and she wore an orchid corsage.

The bride's only attendant, Mrs. V. Forges, was in a cream wool dress. She wore dark green accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. V. Hanney was soloist and Mr. Bill Buckle, organist, played traditional wedding music during the ceremony.

B.C. Mineral Output Sets New Record

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

For the fourth consecutive year British Columbia has set a record in mineral production and 1966 should be even better, Mines Minister Brothers said Thursday.

Preliminary estimate of $270,750,000 worth of mineral production in 1965 was several million dollars higher than the 1964 record of $267,496,854.

Even though a new record was established in 1965, Mr. Brothers said production was lower than expected because the Craigmont copper mine near Merritt has been closed since a strike began in October.

NEW MINES

"Next year should be very good," said the minister, considering the output anticipated from these mines and the fact that three new mines will come into production.These are Western Mines at the southern end of Butte Lake on Vancouver Island, which has deposits of zinc, copper, lead, gold and silver; Red Mountain molybdenum mine on the outskirts of Rossland and Tasi in the Queen Charlotte which will be producing iron concentrates. Mr. Brothers said.

ADDS TO GROWTH

"Prospects for 1966 include increased production of copper, molybdenum and probably of zinc and some other metals, and with normal growth in other minerals should further increase the value of mineral production," he said.

Molybdenum from the new mines at Ross Mountain and Endako added $11,000,000 to the total value.

Industrial minerals, structural materials and fuels allincreased significantly, offsetting the decrease in metals and bringing the total moderately higher than in 1964.

Crews Back At Work

VANCOUVER (CP)—A work stoppage by 112 operating employees of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway is over.

A spokesman for the group said Wednesday of the stoppage, triggered by the dismissal of an uncooperative yard foreman: "It's all over. The men figures they weren't getting any action on their grievances and they all hooked back on again."

The walkout began Dec. 3 with train crews hooking off as unfit for duty because of illness.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (CLC) tried to patch up the differences between the railway and men without success.

A railway spokesman said that men hooked back on the active list won't be permitted to return to work until their reasons for hooking off sick have been investigated. The hearing of the individual cases is expected to take some time.

LIST OF REEF

A union spokesman said the Railway Brotherhood would appeal the firing of a Prince George foreman just before his probationary time was up. The idle group then confronted the railway with a list of operating grievances.

Movement of both freight and passenger service on the government line, rail lifeline from the coast to the northern Peace River country, was interfered to varying degrees by the work stoppage.

Granduc Men Favor Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—Union officials said today the work force at Granduc Mines Limited—500 miles north of here—has voted 85 per cent in favor of strike action to back up demands for a collective agreement.

The camp was wiped out last Feb. 18 when an avalanche swept through it, killing 26 men.

Harold Mulroney, president of local 188 of the Tunnel and Rock Workers' Union, one of three unions involved in the dispute, said the vote was government-supervised and that the next step was further negotiation with the company.

Associated with the Tunnel and Rock Workers in the three-way pact are the Teamsters Union (Ind.) and the International Union of Operating Engineers, (CLC), local 115.

Drifting Sub Boarded

LAND'S END, England (AP)—A helicopter landed four men on the drifting hulk of the submarine Seraph Thursday and they began working to get her back in tow.

The Seraph, famous for her part in a wartime plot to fool the Germans about Allied invasion plans, was being taken from Portsmouth naval base to a Swansea scrapyard when the tow parted Wednesday night.

The Royal Navy tug Cyclone stood by throughout the night off Cape Cornwall.

The Seraph landed the body of The Man Who Never Was off the coast of Spain in 1941. The body, dressed in a Royal Marine officer's uniform, carried false plans of the Allied invasion of Europe in an attempt to mislead the Germans. The story was told in a book and then made into a movie.

Garden Notes

Books Are Safer

By M. V. CHESNUT
One rather difficult problem in Christmas shopping is what to buy for a really ardent houseplant fan. The obvious choice—a florist's plant—is a grand gift with which to start a friend off on this fascinating hobby of indoor gardening, but it can be away off the mark if the recipient happens to be a real expert.
My wife made a horrible faux pas along these lines on one occasion. She wanted to send a little gift to her Uncle Hamish in Montreal, and remembering that she had seen the old boy fussing around some plants during her last visit, she arranged by mail to have a Montreal florist deliver a pretty little cactus plant to his home.
She received a polite but strangely cool thank-you note, and it wasn't until some months later she learned that Hamish was Canadian vice-president of the International Cacti and Succulent Society, an acknowledged expert in this field, and very much in demand as a guest speaker before various U.S. chapters of this Society. The gift of that common cactus must have been about on a par with presenting a bicycle to a sports car enthusiast.
A florist's plant, as I say, makes a most worthwhile gift for ordinary non-expert folks, and it is an especially happy choice for a shut-in or invalid; the responsibility of looking after a plant seems to do wonders for the morale of such a person. But for the real houseplant buff, I think a wiser choice would be a book on houseplants.

There is a very wide range in such books. For the specialist there are specialist's books on African violets, on gladioli, on bromeliads, ferns, miniature roses, foliage plants and cacti—some of the latter bear long, jaw-breaking titles in German and would delight even my wife's Uncle Hamish. And there are more generalized books, more suitable for folks with a wider range of houseplant interests.
One which I would especially recommend is "The World Book of Houseplants" by Elvin McDonald, published in Canada by Nelson, Foster & Scott Ltd. and priced at $7.95. This is a big book of 318 pages, profusely illustrated although not in color. The first part contains more or less generalized instructions on how to start and grow plants; the middle portion is an alphabetical encyclopedia of houseplants giving the name, history and culture of over 700 plants, each one illustrated with a line drawing of the plant. At the back of the book is a miscellany containing a glossary, a list of books and magazines on houseplants, a list of

Not so all-embracing but very much to the point is "1001 Houseplant Questions Answered" by Stanley Schuler, published by Van Nostrand, and priced at $7.25. This is not a "browsing" kind of book, but lists all the most commonly asked questions together with straightforward answers, ranging from "Why won't my African violets bloom?" to "How do you plant a Zephyr Lily?"
There is a remarkably fine volume in the pocketbook class called House Plants, by Margaret E. Jones, published by Penguin Handbooks in collaboration with the Royal Horticultural Society and selling for 8s. 6d., probably around $1.50 in our money. The author is married, with four grown-up sons and three grandchildren, and operates a commercial houseplant nursery and greenhouse in Surrey.
The book is a solid and practical guide to choosing and caring for houseplants of all kinds, and contains 130 pictures of plants, most of them photographs. Being English, a few of the plants we grow herabouts are omitted; I could find no mention whatever of the gladioli, for instance. Against this, it suggests and describes some houseplants popular in England but almost unknown here. All in all, it is very much better value than one would expect to find for the price asked.

ARTHUR HOPPE Ends the War

Vhtnning Truce Escalated

It was in the 43rd year of the lightning campaign to drive the dread Viet-Narians guerrillas out of West Vhtnning. There was no question that their sudden offer of a 12-hour truce on Christmas Eve caught Washington officials by surprise.
"What a rotten, sneaky, underhanded thing to do," said the President grimly at an emergency meeting of the National Security Council.
"If we accept," said the secretary of defence, frowning, "it will be widely interpreted as a softening of our will to honor our commitments in West Vhtnning."
"And if we refuse," said the secretary of state, shaking his head, "we will be virulently accused of lacking peaceful intentions. Not to mention the Christmas spirit."
There was a brooding silence. "Gentlemen," the President finally said, "I can see no alternative but to take the same course we have always taken in Vhtnning when we didn't know what to do." He paused and looked around the room. "We will," he said, "have to escalate."
And so it was that the president went on nationwide television and said: "We not only accept the offer of these Godless atheists for a truce on Christmas Eve, but we will not shoot anybody at all during Christmas Day either. Which certainly ought to teach them a thing or two."
Premier Ho Ho Ho, the brains behind the Viet-Narians, was understandably furious. In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, he denounced "insane capitalist imperialists" and added to the truce period the shopping days before Christmas.
"This administration," replied the President in a sober address, "plans to meet every commitment of the Communists in Vhtnning with an equal commitment." And he tossed in all of Christmas week and the first 10 days of January for returning unwanted gifts.

In a devious countermove, Premier Ho extended the truce period to include Passover, Purim, Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.
The President, at a hastily called press conference, denounced this as "a blatant appeal to the Vhtnning Jewish vote." In retaliation, he said, our troops had been ordered not to fire unless fired upon during the Charity Bazaar and Virgin Sacrifice Festival—a month-long rite practiced by certain animist tribes in the Vhtnning highlands.
And so it went with both sides furiously lobbing holidays at each other. At last it appeared a stalemate had been reached with the war confined to August 25—neither side being able to think of any reason not to shoot each other on August 25.
Luckily, however, a diligent researcher discovered this was Attila the Hun's birthday. And a triumphant President proudly proclaimed the final victory in The Great Truce Race.
The downward escalation of Vhtnning into a total non-shooting war was generally well received, except for a few generals on both sides who complained of "the severe limitations on strategic planning" this imposed.
As for the Vhtnningians themselves, after 43 years of war they quickly adjusted to the demands of peace. And henceforth they wholeheartedly celebrated every single day that came along. The way everybody should.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Nepotism Rampant

NEW YORK (NANA)—Jane Fonda will star in all of Roger Vadim's next three pictures. Isn't that carrying nepotism too far? She's his wife you know. Her father, Henry Fonda, by the way, called each of his three children in advance to let them know about his marriage to pretty ex-airline stewardess Shirley Adams. If they had not approved there would not have been a wedding. . . . Vadim is seeking Rod Taylor for one of the pictures with Jane who, as you may have noticed, styles her blonde locks in what they call Bardot's "sour-krout" hair-do. Don't ask me why. All of his wives and all five women in Vadim's Les Liaisons Dangereuses, had the same hair style. Maybe Roger is queer for sour kraut.
Shirley Booth, having some bronchial trouble, has cut her Hazel schedule to five hours a day. . . . Twentieth Century Fox TV toppers are holding their respective breaths because of the rumor that Frank Sinatra will marry Peyton Place girl, Mia Farrow, any day now.

James Mason visits the set of The Great St. Trinian's Train Robbery in England to give his 17-year-old daughter, Porty, some acting tips. Hard to believe that the man who hit Ann Todd's hands while she played the piano in The Seventh Veil, is now 56 years old. He admits to being more mellow in real life than he was then. You couldn't get a word out of him when he first came to Hollywood. He seemed suspicious of everyone—except wife Pamela.
Mike Nichols, who expects to finish Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? this weekend or early next, was saying to Joe Levine, "I haven't read a good play yet." He must mean in the past six months. Because he's had some pretty good plays on and off Broadway. To name three, The Knack, Barefoot in the Park, and Luv. With regard to the ending of the "Woolf" film, Mike said, "I feel like I'm getting out of the army." It's been seven months. He will probably direct The Graduate for Levine at Paramount. After a rest.

Carols Prejudices

- Purely Personal Prejudices:
- If the exchange of presents were limited to expressions of genuine friendship and concern, rather than exhibitions of competitive generosity and conspicuous opulence;
 - If shopping expeditions were conducted with some grace and courtesy, rather than displaying the ferocity of a football backfield in motion;
 - If climbing families did not vie with each other in the elaborateness of their Christmas cards and, instead, contributed some of the surplus expenditure to a worthy charity;
 - If the liquor industry refrained from displaying pictures of jolly old Santa Claus dispensing booze to the populace;
 - If the Christmas-through-New Year period were devoted to amending the thoughtlessness and rudeness of the preceding year, rather than resembling an inebriated insane asylum run by the inmates;
 - If less hysteria, and more taste, care and conservation were exercised in the purchase of gifts, so that the week after Christmas would not find the "return and exchange" counters of shops in a state of utter chaos and collapse;
 - If children were taught that Christmas is a season for giving, not just for grabbing, so that the self-centredness that is encouraged for the holidays does not have to be disciplined in January for children are incapable of understanding why an attitude that is pampered in one week is punished in the next;
 - If the hearty friendliness could be laid on a little less heavily, so that there would be more to spread over the rest of the year, when it is so badly needed;
 - And, most of all, if we forget all the worldly perversions encrusting Jesus' birthday, and celebrated by remembering: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets."

Matthew Rises Up to Follow Jesus Christ

The Miracles of Christmas

by John J. Stewart

Sitting at the "receipt of custom" by the Sea of Galilee collecting taxes was a drab life indeed for Levi Matthew. Although the position of publican paid well, such income was regarded as filthy lucre. As a mercenary for the Romans he was an object of derision and hatred by his countrymen. "Publicans and sinners" were always lumped together.

For the handsome income received, he could endure the jeers. But the life was a tedious and shallow one. Day after day it was the same thing. There was no real satisfaction to it. Nothing in which to take pride. Nothing to challenge the mind or heart.

Matthew yearned for something, he was not sure what, that would make his life meaningful and satisfying; something that would give direction and purpose to living. He had sought the answer in the synagogue, but he found the religion of the Pharisees.

with their sham and hypocrisy, to be as putrid as water from the Dead Sea. Then one day Matthew heard of a young prophet, a man from nearby Nazareth, by the name of Jesus. Rumors were flying through the market places that this Jesus had great powers of healing and that He taught as one having authority. Matthew decided to follow along with the multitudes out to a neighboring mountain to see and hear this new prophet for himself. And there on the mount he heard a sermon so beautiful and profound that it touched him like a cool breeze off the Sea of Galilee, refreshing and invigorating to the soul, stimulating to the mind.

As he again sat at customs, his thoughts kept dwelling upon the words of Jesus: "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

One day shortly afterward as Matthew was collecting taxes on merchandise passing through his station, he noticed a throng of people coming down the road, and in their midst, Jesus.

No doubt, feared Matthew, the Nazareth prophet would think ill of him as a publican, just as the Pharisees did.

Much to his surprise, when Jesus had drawn close to his station He stopped and looked at him, studying him closely. Matthew fidgeted. He braced himself for a severe rebuke from this outspoken prophet whom he admired.

But Jesus smiled at him, and beckoning to him said, "Follow me."

The unexpected invitation sent an overwhelming urge pulsating through Matthew, an irresistible urge to do as the stranger bid him.

But it did not make sense, just getting up and leaving his custom duties, walking out on a lucrative job.

Yet, those sublime words that Jesus had spoken in his sermon — the message of Christmas — could not be silenced in his soul, and Matthew knew that this was indeed the miracle in life for which he had longed.

Crime Wave Continuing

LONDON (AP) — Two more robberies pushed the take in London's pre-Christmas crime wave Thursday to more than £1,310,000 ($3,930,000) in the last six weeks.

Police reported that a man snatched a bag containing £30,000 ($80,000) worth of diamonds from a gem merchant as he left a London subway station.

Police also reported thieves got into a post office in West London Wednesday and stole cash and postage stamps worth £30,000.

Two Charged With Smuggling

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two employees of a Hong Kong exporting and importing firm have been charged here under the Customs Act with possession of smuggled goods.

Police said they seized $15,000 worth of jade and ivory figurines, gold cuff links and other articles in a raid on a West End apartment.

Charged are Yan Yee Man and Tony Chung Li Yen, both 37.

They were scheduled to appear in magistrate's court late Thursday.

Mackenzie Ranges

Experts Deplore
Opening
Of Game Area

Taufa-Ahau

By DON MACLACHLAN
EDMONTON (CP)—Two Alberta wildlife experts say the federal government should have taken a better look before leaping into opening the trophy game country of the Mackenzie ranges to non-resident hunting.

Al Oeming, zoologist and owner of the Alberta Game

Farm, and Edgar T. Jones, president of the Alberta Wildlife Foundation, maintain the government should have first made a proper survey of the northern area's game population.

But, says Don Flook, Canadian Wildlife Service biologist who recommended the North-west Territories area be opened this year: "We don't believe that's necessary. There is game there adequate to hunt."

Oeming and Jones say the rugged 50,000 square miles between the Mackenzie River and the Yukon - N.W.T. boundary was the last uninhabited big game area in North America.

The 500-mile strip of timber and mountain is the home of record-book Dall sheep, caribou, moose, goat and grizzly bear. Outfitters organized safaris costing up to $100 a day when it opened this fall.

WILL HUNTS INCREASE?

Seventy hunters went out this year but where will it stop when "rich Americans" are prepared to jump at the chance of hunting in virgin territory? Oeming asks.

"Who can tell what the human influx into that area will be in 10 years? and we don't even know how much game there is in there. Did anyone do a comprehensive survey?"

Not by a lengthy, costly and "practically impossible" head-count of animals, Flook admits. But he worked for four years at Fort Simpson on the Mackenzie River and "we've got a pretty good picture."

"We're certainly quite confident that the area is not over-hunted," Flook says. "In fact, it's been under-hunted by Indians and trappers and, since 1960, by territorial residents."

"Besides, most of that country is a first class inaccessible. There are only a few lakes where planes can land and most of the hunting will be confined to within 10 miles or so of the lakes."

"I find it a little hard to believe there will be a slaughter. There are animals back there in the hills that are dying of old age without ever seeing a hunter."

CHARGES GUESSWORK
Oeming, who has made several trips into the Mackenzies to trap animals for his game farm near Edmonton, says that statement is typical of the "guesswork" behind the opening of the area.

"How does Flook know that? I wonder if Flook hasn't forgotten the cruel winters that preclude animals from reaching old age. Does he know? For God's sake, let's find out what there is in there."

Flook flew over the Mackenzies for a week in 1963 on a survey for the N.W.T. council. The "not very meaningful" survey counted about 150 Dall sheep, 50 moose, 30 caribou, scattered head of other game.

"It was just an indication of what we saw in there," Flook says. "I could just as well have left it out of the report. . . . I've seen, and so have other people, herds of caribou in the thousands."

Such non-comprehensive surveys are hardly an adequate base on which to recommend opening the area to "Americans who don't care what they spend," says Jones, a naturalist-photographer who has just completed six years of work on a movie of Canadian wildlife.

SPEND HEAVILY
"The Americans will be in there by the thousands; they'll spend anything . . . up to $1,000 a day."

And inaccessibility won't worry them either, he says. "They'll use helicopters. They can afford it."

He suggests northern affairs and N.W.T. officials will be "very sorry" if the Dall sheep population is "shot out" because the region was opened before anyone knew how many sheep there were in the hills.

But, says Jean Wharrie Malfair, assistant superintendent of game for the Mackenzie district: "We anticipate no change. . . . And we'll be keeping a constant check on what's killed."

Malfair, based at Fort Smith, N.W.T., says that if hunter tallies show too many young animals are being killed "we can restrict the number of licences or . . . shut it off right there."

With hunters restricted to one animal of each species—and for most species that's limited to a male—there is "no chance of depleting the population," he says.

Another factor is that outfitters are employing Indian guides and cooks, thus contributing to the northern economy. Malfair said adding that this could reach perhaps $100,000 a year.

One of luckier workers, buried up to neck, is dug out

Workers Claw, Dig and Drill

MONTREAL (UPI)—They dug with their hands... with bits of wood... small shovels... and pick-axes. Anything they could find was used in a frantic effort to save their workmates—entombed in 1,600 tons of fast-hardening cement.

For hours the men worked. None admitted it but they knew there was no hope for their friends.

But they kept on. When it got dark searchlights were set up and they kept digging. Even as the concrete hardened the staccato of jack-hammers only stopped when another body was found.

Ironically the mixture was a special quick-hardening variety for winter construction work.

As the concrete started to set so did the faces of rescuers.

Marcel Pelletier, aged 32, of Dorval was working in the tunnel when "all hell broke loose."

"It was like the roof of the world fell in on those guys. They didn't stand a chance."

"People came from everywhere to help but I guess we knew it was the end for some of them..."

Two Quit Cabinet

Way Cleared for Big Shuffle

OTTAWA (CP) — Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay, both criticized for their furniture purchases on credit, announced their resignations from the federal cabinet Thursday night. Both will continue to sit in Parliament.

Their prepared statements came on the eve of an announcement expected from Prime Minister Pearson on cabinet changes following the Nov. 8 general election.

Both men defended their conduct but listed the furniture issue—Mr. Tremblay made a direct reference to it—as reason for their resignations. Mr. Lamontagne mentioned a "personal transaction"—apparently an indirect reference to the issue.

The resignations give Mr. Pearson plenty of elbow room for the full-scale cabinet shakeup he is expected to announce at a press conference this afternoon. He now has five vacancies to fill.

Walter Gordon resigned the finance portfolio shortly after the election, and Agriculture Minister Hays and Mines Minister MacNaught were defeated in their ridings Nov. 8.

The resignations of the two Quebec MPs were not unexpected. There was considerable speculation that they would leave the cabinet in today's shuffle.

Mr. Lamontagne is member for Outremont—St. Jean, Mr. Tremblay for Matapédia—Matane.

Mr. Tremblay said he had considered resigning last Easter when he was ill in hospital but felt it might be interpreted as an admission of guilt "of the many infractions and allegations made against me."

"These circumstances no longer apply," he quoted from the Doran report on the Lucien Rivard affair which said if Mr. Tremblay had suffered from statements "it is to be hoped that the persons responsible will now recognize his honesty and integrity."

Mr. Tremblay said he had explained to the Commons he had paid for his furniture within the earliest possible time following delivery and paid regular prices.

"I made it clear that I had enjoyed no benefit nor conditions not otherwise available to anyone else."

Mr. Tremblay opened his letter to the prime minister by saying that since he has been a member of the government the strains of office have been no less than those of many of his colleagues.

"Suffering from hypertension, however, it was natural that my state of health should rapidly deteriorate," he said, then referring to his Easter illness and his consideration or resigning then.

In a letter to the prime minister attached to his resignation, Mr. Lamontagne said that a private transaction he made wasn't "tainted with any dishonesty."

"The subsequent controversy, which has been perpetuated for more than a year, and which the general election did not stop, requires that I decide whether I can better serve my country at this time inside or outside cabinet."

"I have decided to submit my resignation."

He told the prime minister

that for more than 20 years "and often under difficult conditions" he tried to serve his compatriots and his country in universities, civil service and in Parliament to the best of his knowledge and according to his conscience.

"I have valued the opportunity to try to make a contribution to the reorientation of our federalism, to the development of bilingualism, and to the first stage of economic planning."

Egypt Latest To Close Door

CUT BRITISH TIES

By Reuters

Egypt broke diplomatic relations with Britain Thursday night because of its failure so far to topple Ian Smith's breakaway Rhodesian regime, the Middle East News Agency reported.

The Congo (Brazzaville) also severed relations with Britain, a Radio Brazzaville broadcast said.

The two states joined five other African nations—Ghana, Guinea, Mauritania, Tanzania and Mali—in implementing the 36-nation Organization of African Unity resolution of Dec. 3 calling on African states to cut diplomatic ties with Britain if it did not crush the Smith regime by Dec. 15.

Two of them, Ghana and Tanzania, are members of the Commonwealth, although Ghana said it was considering withdrawing from it. The Congo (Brazzaville), Guinea, Mauritania and Mali are former French territories.

Smith Drops Plan To Name Regent

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime announced today it has dropped a plan to appoint a regent in Rhodesia "out of deference to Her Majesty the Queen and members of the Royal family."

The announcement added, however, that Clifford Dupont, appointed four weeks ago by Smith as "officer administering the government of Rhodesia" to replace the Queen's appointee, Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs, would retain the title.

Following Space Trouble

Cautious 'Go' Given For Full G-7 Flight

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gemini 7 distance champions Frank Borman and James Lovell were given a tentative "go" for a full 14-day flight Thursday night despite a fuel cell problem that threatened to bring them down one day early.

If all continues as planned in the final stages of their epic mission, Borman and Lovell, now in their 13th day in space, will drop into the Atlantic Ocean Saturday morning near the spot where Gemini 6 rendezvous spacemen Walter M. Schirra and Thomas Stafford landed Thursday morning.

Schirra and Stafford were in great shape Thursday night aboard the U.S.S. Wasp, the prime recovery carrier, after splashing down only 13 miles away at 10:29 A.M. (EST) to end the one-day flight that scored history's first rendezvous in space.

Wilson Tells UN

'Give Us Time'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Three-quarters of the African delegates to the United Nations turned their backs Thursday on Prime Minister Wilson as he appealed to the General Assembly to support Britain's efforts in the Rhodesian crisis.

Malawi was the only Commonwealth member in the 36-nation African bloc to remain in the 117-nation assembly to hear the prime minister promise that Britain will resolve the crisis created by the colony's unilateral declaration of independence Nov. 11. (See picture, Page 3.)

'NO TURNING BACK'

"But I beseech this assembly to give us time to deal with this situation," Wilson said with determination. "I have made it clear that in this task to which we have set our hands, there will be no turning back."

The prime minister sat in the assembly with the British delegation when introduced.

PROTESTS FAILURE

The African demonstration was in protest against Britain's failure to bring to an end the seizure of independence by Prime Minister Ian Smith. Albania joined in the walkout.

Tewfik Bouattour, the Algerian ambassador, said the walkout was in protest against British policy in Rhodesia that has led a handful of African nations to break diplomatic relations with Britain.

"A walkout is not dignified and serves no useful purpose," said Nathan Barnes, chief delegate of Liberia, one of the African countries remaining in the hall.

The others were Malawi, Madagascar, Togo, Upper Volta, the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Gabon and the Central African Republic.

NAZIS BACK SMITH

Outside the UN headquarters, three uniformed members of the American Nazi party staged a demonstration in support of Smith's regime in Salisbury. They carried signs which said: "Ian Smith is Right," "Keep Rhodesia White," and "Ban British Goods."

Africans Boycott British Chief

As Prime Minister Wilson of Great Britain starts his address to UN General Assembly, African delegates rise from their seats and walk out of meeting. Wilson disregarded affront, appealed to General Assembly to support Britain's Rhodesian policy. — (AP)

Nato Sets New Sights

PARIS (CP)—For the first time since its inception, the North Atlantic Alliance has begun to reappraise its objectives giving more attention to a drive for East-West disarmament and nuclear curbs than to arms buildup. External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who indicated Thursday he may make a trip to Moscow to confer with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko, said the NATO council paid more attention to disarmament than at any previous session.

The foreign, defence and finance ministers, ending their three-day talks, expressed concern Thursday about the danger of nuclear proliferation and agreed to explore every possible means of obtaining East-West agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons and to achieve disarmament pacts.

WILL REVIEW PROGRAMS
They also agreed in principle to review their own military planning so as to strengthen NATO's mobile "fire brigade" force.

Canada, the United States and Britain believe this force needs more troops, financing and transport. The "fire brigade" unit, which includes one Canadian battalion, is designed to quell small armed clashes before they can turn into a nuclear struggle.

The NATO ministers also accepted in principle the U.S. plan for a five-year military planning concept, to provide for more efficient long-range production and more realistic goals based on what each member country is prepared to contribute.

Maugham's Funeral

'As He Wished'

LONDON (AP)—The ashes of W. Somerset Maugham will be buried in the grounds of Canterbury Cathedral at a private ceremony Wednesday. This was as he wished it.

Long a resident of France, the British author died early Thursday of a stroke at the age of 91 in his beloved Riviera villa at Nice.

AN AGNOSTIC
As an agnostic, Maugham said last year he wanted no "holy Henry" delivering a eulogy following the "hellishly homesome experience" of dying. These last wishes are being carried out.

The body lay Thursday in a room in his villa without the flowers he loved. This was another wish. He said he did not want flowers around his bier. The body will be cremated Monday, as he requested, at Marseilles. Then the ashes will be brought to England.

Very Rev. L. H. White-Thomson, Dean of Canterbury, said Maugham's son-in-law, Lord Glendon, was making the burial arrangements. Maugham and his daughter were estranged.

A contemporary of such giants as Bernard Shaw, Oscar Wilde, Arnold Bennett and H. G. Wells, Maugham never pretended to such eminence but he was rated as a top craftsman. He turned out 30 plays, 25 novels and 120 short stories.

Canada Buys More Than It Sells

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian balance of international payments ran to a $754,000,000 deficit in the first nine months of 1965, compared with a deficit of $272,000,000 in the same period of 1964, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

The third-quarter deficit was only a slight improvement of $6,000,000 from the deficit amassed in the first half of the year.

LARGE INCREASES
The bureau said larger increases in imports than in exports were the leading factor.

Allowing for seasonal factors, the third-quarter deficit was the equivalent of an annual rate of excess of imports over exports amounting to $1,000,000,000. "Increases in imports are a reflection of strong Canadian demands associated with record levels of incomes and expenditures, including the large investments in machinery and equipment and some accumulation of inventories," the bureau said.

"Exports to the U.S. and some overseas destinations have continued to rise over last year, and in the third quarter a new factor in exports overseas for this year was the first delivery in the sales of wheat to the U.S.S.R., announced during the quarter."

Canada Plays New Role

LONDON (CP)—Canada took over Thursday as diplomatic intermediary between Tanzania and Britain and faced the possibility of serving the same role between Ghana and Britain.

Tanzania broke relations with Britain at midnight Wednesday and Ghana did likewise 15 hours later in protest at Britain's failure to take more severe action against the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia.

Ties Cut

Since the 36-member OAU issued its Dec. 3 call to its members, several African countries, including Ethiopia on whose territory the severance decision was made, have indicated unwillingness to break with Britain at this time.

President Davis Dacko of the Central African Republic Wednesday night ridiculed the OAU decision and said his country would not follow it.

STRONG BACKING
Britain received strong NATO backing for its economic sanctions against the breakaway colony at a ministerial council meeting in Paris this week.

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, told NATO Canada had cut exports from Rhodesia by 98 per cent and would consider further action in support of Britain.

WIDENS SANCTIONS
Japan ordered further import restrictions against Rhodesia Thursday after a request was received from the British ambassador in Tokyo, Sir Francis Rundall.

The Commonwealth relations office in London said the breaking of relations by African states would not help Britain solve the Rhodesian crisis.

RECORDS BREAK
It issued a statement saying: "While we understand the passionate feelings of the African governments on Rhodesia we regret any break in relations. We do not understand the motives of the decision to break with Britain. Such action cannot be helpful in our efforts to find a solution to the Rhodesian problem."

CONTROLLING VOICE
President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, in announcing the rupture in relations in Accra, made it clear his country would restore normal ties as soon as the breakaway colony's Negro majority is assured of a controlling voice in Rhodesia.

He said sanctions alone are inadequate and must be backed by military intervention, but he said Britain showed no signs of taking such action.

NAMED FIVE
The president said he would call on OAU members to break with all colonial or former colonial powers if they stood in the way of African unity. He named Britain, France, Spain, Portugal and Belgium in this context.

In Dar es Salaam, about 1,000 banner-waving Africans marched Thursday past what was until Wednesday night the British high commission in Tanzania.

Pakistani Dead 15,000?

Cyclone Toll Mounts

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI)—Thousands were feared killed in a cyclone and tidal wave which devastated large areas of East Pakistan and nearby islands in the Bay of Bengal, according to reports Thursday.

The reports reaching Dacca said as many as 15,000 persons may have died when the 140-mph cyclone ripped through a 6,000-square-mile area and sent the tidal wave smashing over the islands and the coast in the southern part of east Pakistan late Tuesday and early Wednesday.

First fragmentary reports from the stricken area about 250 miles southeast of here began trickling in to Dacca Thursday. It was the fourth disastrous cyclone to smash the area in the last five years. Each of the preceding storms also killed thousands of men, women and children.

At Cox's Bazar, 90 miles south of Chittagong, the water of the Bay of Bengal surged about 12 feet above normal high tide and swept the entire area for several hours.

Reports from the offshore island of Maheskhali near Cox's Bazar said more than 10,000 persons were feared dead on this island alone. The island was reported to have been swept from end to end by the tidal wave.

While much of the stricken area was still cut off, authoritative reports estimated the overall toll at 15,000. More than 2,000 were fishermen caught at sea in small boats when the cyclone struck, the reports said. Trawlers and naval vessels were scouring the sea for possible survivors.

Try Bonded Stock on a friend without letting him see the label

It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky; how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?

If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can conceal the label but you can't disguise the flavour. It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour that dyed-in-the-wool whisky drinkers love.

So if you know someone who buys whisky by labels, introduce him to flavour. Bonded Stock flavour. He'll never look back.

PARKSVILLE — Village commissioners here have given approval to a $12,000 centennial project.

The local centennial committee had suggested construction of two tennis courts and a bowling green in Parksville community park.

A single clubhouse will also be built to serve both groups of sportsmen.

UNION BAY — A Christmas party was enjoyed by members of the United Church Evening Circle and their friends recently. Audrey Sawchuk, president, welcomed guests at this special event.

During the short business period, reports showed a favorable financial gain from the recent church anniversary supper. Two travelling baskets have been recalled after going around the area, which have also added to the group's funds. Mildred Coe was named social convener during Emily Peters' leave of absence.

PARKSVILLE — Proof of a lack of interest in local politics in Parksville was the recent municipal election when less than one-third, 248 out of 852, eligible voters turned out to the polls. Some residents said afterwards that as they did not know the men who were running for office they did not see any point in voting, others said they forgot about the election.

LADYSMITH — Thieves Wednesday night took about $40 from the Wigwam Cafe after breaking a rear window and entering the premises and between $10 and $15 from the Sportsman Hotel, where they removed a panel from a side door to get in. RCMP are investigating.

UNION BAY — A number of parents were on hand to support their boys and girls when they went to Sayward for basketball games on Saturday.

The local teams were all defeated, but gained much in experience, especially the pre-midget boys who are just beginners at the game. These teams are coached by Ricky Richardson, Lane McDonald, and Wayne Harnden.

Mothers. Now an Effective Cough Syrup That Children Love to Take

Pleasant-tasting Jack & Jill Cough Syrup with added Vitamin C Works wonders—children love it.

One of the most disturbing sounds a mother can hear is her child coughing at night. A nagging cough from a cold seems so much worse when it's irritating a child. The throat membranes of children are more sensitive, more easily hurt. This is why W. K. Buckley spent years perfecting his special cough syrup for children. His time and trouble have been well rewarded. Today, Jack & Jill Cough Syrup helps more children's coughs than any other product in Canada. There are a number of very good reasons why Jack & Jill Cough Syrup is preferred by most Canadian Mothers. The carefully selected ingredients in Jack & Jill Cough Syrup are double-acting. They relieve the congestion that causes so much trouble, and they relieve irritated throat membranes, making it easier for the child to swallow. Jack & Jill soothes the irritation and lets your child rest comfortably. Children like Jack & Jill. The mild, white-cherry taste gives this cough syrup the pleasant flavor that children like so well. Jack & Jill Cough Syrup is both a treat and a treatment. And every dose of Jack & Jill contains added Vitamin C... the vitamin children specially need when they are feverish.

Jack & Jill Cough Syrup for children is sold everywhere. Ask for it by name.

Indian Lore Offered

NANAIMO — West Coast of Vancouver Island folklore will be coming to Nanaimo when George Clutesi will give a series of lectures as part of the adult education program, starting Jan. 17.

Mr. Clutesi, a member of the Seshat "Tribe, is well known Indian narrator, and will be coming down to Nanaimo every week from Alberni to give the lectures at the senior high school. The Clutesi lectures will be just one of 32 new classes starting up after Christmas.

W. G. Tippet, adult education director here, has approached the education officer with the Indian affairs department with the idea of incorporating Indians into the local program. Tippet said nothing concrete has been arranged yet, but he was hoping to stir up an active interest among the Indians. "If we get a few started others might join," he added.

Students tackle delicate ice carving job

Ice Sculptured by Cook Trainees

Banquet Highlight Now Big Puddle

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — A gleaming three-foot-high graceful swan, bathed in pink light and carved at a zero temperature, was the highlight Thursday evening of a sumptuous banquet prepared by 15 cook trainees at the Nanaimo Vocational School.

The swan was the work of Barry Selfe, 20, of Victoria, and by the time you read this story his 70 hours of painful labor will be just one big puddle of water.

This is just one of the arts the cooks learn at the school.

Another Victorian, John Shaw, 22, took on a similar project and carved a Horn of Plenty as a companion piece to the swan.

The whole class tackled a Nativity scene in beef fat. The students got the idea from a Christmas card, and depicted five figures, all about four and a half feet high, crowding around the baby Jesus.

At last night's dinner there were no speeches, no special guests, just the 200 students at the school.

The cooks are half way through their 11-month course, and as well as staging special buffets, they provide three meals a day for all the students.

Chief instructor is John Bateman, and this is his third course. He said the demand for cooks exceeds the supply of graduates each year.

Students come from all over the province, sleep in the dormitories and eat in the cafeteria.

A Man Has to Be Fairly Dedicated

The course is not for slouches. An 18-hour day is not unusual, and Bateman maintained "a man has to be fairly dedicated because he spends a year here first."

Afterwards he goes on to spend up to 10 years under a qualified chef before he, himself, can be called a chef.

Bateman doesn't expect any of his pupils to remain in Nanaimo.

"Most boys go on to Vancouver or Victoria where the top chefs are."

Ice and beef fat carving is not part of the curriculum, and it is all done in the students' own time.

"There's only room for one mistake in ice carving—it's a most difficult medium to work with."

"We start with the neck first, because that's where a break is most likely to occur. But any block of ice has faults in it, and just one wrong stroke with the chisel can ruin the entire carving, Bateman said.

In a restaurant Bateman estimated last night's meal would have cost $20 a plate.

Every dish was a work of art.

Just one example. A student baked a chicken, using it to form a native's body, legs and arms. He stood the chicken on its legs, topped it with a small coconut, which he decorated with cream to form a face. Between the chicken's legs was placed a half grapefruit, and from the chicken's wings came two drumsticks.

There was a native from deepest Africa playing the tom-toms.

Another boy baked 60 pounds of spare ribs and then fashioned a native hut.

The list is endless, but B.C.'s eating public are bound to benefit.

In Well-Heeled Alberni Valley

Some Suffer Amid Plenty

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — In the well-heeled Alberni Valley poverty is a word that has little meaning for many residents.

But a report published in Ottawa by the department of Indian affairs makes it quite specific "poverty faces Canadians daily if they have to live as a family of four on less than $3,000 a year."

For unfortunate, incapable or handicapped people on low incomes here it becomes stark reality when their housing is threatened.

Low rental housing in this area, according to social welfare officials, and to those in low-income brackets, is almost non-existent.

Building Up

Although building permits to date this year in Port Alberni Mount to the staggering sum of $3,835,154, up almost $500,000 over same period 1964, not one noticeable dime has gone to alleviate low rental housing conditions.

New apartments are mushrooming in the valley... and monthly rentals range from a modest $110 for studio apartments, to $145 for three-bedroom units, complete with draperies and carpeting.

It's little help to a family of four or five, earning less than three hundred a month. And despite high wages in woods and mills many such jobs do exist in other areas of employment.

On Welfare

It is even less help to families on social welfare.

Take this case of a mother with five children, forced to find accommodation by Jan. 1 because of expansion of a new shopping centre.

Little or nothing suitable for a family of six is available for the top limit of $65 a month allowed for shelter under welfare regulations. And that is using the new welfare scale—it was even less a few months ago.

Most Move Out

Many people who move to the Valley are forced into rental accommodation. Most move out of it as soon as possible. If you can pay $30 to $125 a month, you can find an attractive home or you can buy one as cheaply. Sometimes an older home, with automatic heat, can be found for as little as $80 a month.

But some of the stories the social welfare workers tell about housing conditions among their recipients, especially the native Indians verge on the unbelievable.

An attic room, without water or light, reached through a ladder to a hole in the ceiling, provided shelter for one woman and her four children, until the plight was discovered by welfare workers.

Fortunately, such extreme cases are rare. But anyone who has ever searched for low-cost housing in the Alberni Valley knows what the problems are.

A mother and one child may find a small apartment for $35 or $40 a month. Very likely the place will be heated with an oil stove. The $40 monthly for rent is fine. It's the $25 to $30 a month consumed in oil to provide inadequate heating that gobbles up the sundries provision of the welfare allowance. Inadequate plumbing and wiring is almost certain to prevail.

It's a typical case of the poor get poorer, according to Sidney Abma, social welfare director in the Alberni Valley. Those who can afford to pay adequate rents, around the $100 a month mark, find they can heat their homes comfortably with an oil budget of $12 to $15 monthly. Ricketty old houses, uninhabited, or apartments with windows that don't fit, converted from old homes with 10-foot ceilings, can take as much as three times that amount of oil to heat them inadequately. "There is just nothing available," Mr. Abma confirmed. "I understand municipal governments can get subsidies for low-rental housing and it is desperately needed here."

"Subsidized housing has worked for years in Europe. It is practical if certain standards are maintained. If there are stringent rules, it can work out."

Mr. Abma made an intensive study of such housing projects while attaining his degree in sociology.

Checks Needed

"I know some people consider regular checks on conditions as an infringement on privacy. But just as driver checks are needed to control those who drive to the public danger, so we would have to have checks made on subsidized housing for the good of all."

It is also important, the welfare superintendent stated, to have a good cross-section of the population in any low-rental housing development.

"They must not all be people in one group," he explained. "All must not be welfare recipients, or all of one ethnic group. You need a solid cross-section of low-income groups of varying backgrounds to operate such housing successfully."

Social Action

Again Mr. Abma called for what he termed "a social action group" within the municipality, similar to those in Trail and Chilliwack. These groups concern themselves, he said, with "what is needed to keep our town happy," and are usually organized by a service club.

Under the guidance of "action groups," day nurseries, housekeeping services, foster parents' guidance clinics and similar needs are filled.

Meantime, the search goes on, for some kind of accommodation within the next 15 days, to shelter six people, for $65 a month.

Drop in Bucket

Even if the mother is lucky enough to find a place, it is only a drop in the bucket.

"Hazarding a rough guess," said Mr. Abma "I'd say we have at least 100 families under social welfare care with what could be termed inadequate housing. Who knows how many other low-income families here are making their way under similar housing conditions?"

Duncan, North Cowichan

Joint Studies Urged For Water Problem

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Aldermen from this city and members of North Cowichan council met for three hours Thursday night to discuss four problems that are the joint concern of both areas.

Most important item on the agenda was water supply. The topic produced a good deal of banter among the speakers but also a concrete proposal that engineers from each area engage in a joint study.

Cheap Supply

The investigation will include a survey of water resources in the area in the hope that it will be possible to supply North Cowichan with a cheap but reliable supply.

Alderman Hamish Mutter of Duncan in suggesting further study commented "we are not very far apart in this and I am sure we can arrive at a satisfactory formula."

The long-standing problem of recreation facilities was not so readily resolved.

Mayor Jack Dobson said North Cowichan's plans might be a little embarrassing to Duncan which has a smaller tax base than the municipality. He cited the $300,000 Fuller's Lake project.

Reeve Morton said the best solution might be found in a three-way meeting between North Cowichan, Duncan and the Recreation Commission from the southern area.

He added North Cowichan might be willing to pay two-fifths of the cost of an arena development near Duncan but he explained it might be difficult for the unorganized area to set up facilities for meeting its share by a tax levy.

A written proposal from Miss Mary Walden, president of the SPCA, outlining the cost of providing pound facilities in each area will also get further study.

Three-Way Plan

Ambulance facilities produced a long and involved discussion. One proposal considered was for three-way financing with the municipalities paying half the cost between them while the ambulance society paid the remaining half.

This topic too will undergo further study before further discussion.

Two Airlines Licensed For Irregular Services

OTTAWA (CP) — The Air Transport Board has awarded licences to Nanaimo Airways and Air West Ltd. to operate irregular commercial air services between Nanaimo and Vancouver. It was reported Thursday.

Nanaimo uses float planes and Air West has wheeled aircraft. Both now offer charter service between the two points but the new licences will give them authority to offer passenger and freight service on a per-item rate schedule. Charters are restricted to rental of an entire aircraft.

No Quorum

Burner Issue Fizzles

NANAIMO — The beehive burner issue fizzled out here Thursday night, when the Union Board of Health for central Vancouver Island failed to produce a quorum.

Forty-one residents within the city had signed a petition protesting the operation of the burner by Mayo Lumber Co., at the south end of the city.

Outside Area

Jack Whitlan, was present at the meeting, representing more residents outside the city, but in the Chase River area.

Twenty members sit on the board representing an area from Duncan to Port Alberni.

Only Three

A quorum is five but only three made it, the chairman Alex Smith from the Ladysmith school board, Alderman Gordon McKay, city of Nanaimo, and Mrs. Helen Ford, from the Alberni school district.

Smith called it an embarrassing situation and something not equalled in his 11 years on the board.

He said he would try to call another meeting the first week in January to decide the burner question.

Jaycees Aid Santa Claus

NANAIMO — Jaycees here are playing Santa Claus on two occasions this Christmas when they hold parties for local kids today and Sunday.

Today Peter Littlewood has made arrangements for a party at the United Church on the Indian reserve.

He's lined up Trubini the Magician, and Fred Dorman will dress up as Jolly Old St. Nick.

Sunday at the Occidental Hotel the club will hold a party for members' children when gifts will be exchanged.

Sea Cadets Visit Warship

DUNCAN — Thursday's 70th anniversary of the Navy League of Canada was remembered here with some significance when the Esquimalt-based Frigate HMCS Beacon Hill paid a visit to Maple Bay.

Some 65 boys of the local Navy League Cadet and Sea Cadet Corps were given time off from school and by courtesy of the Cowichan school district were taken in buses to the small resort area east of Duncan.

A harbor craft provided regular trips to shore and besides the boys, dignitaries from the city of Duncan, the municipality of North Cowichan and private citizens paid a visit to the Beacon Hill anchored in calm Maple Bay.

And Bigger Year Expected

By JACK IVY
Legislative Reporter

For the fourth consecutive year British Columbia has set a record in mineral production.

tion and 1966 should be even better, Mines Minister Brothers said Thursday.

Preliminary estimate of $270,750,000 worth of mineral production in 1965 was several million dollars higher than the 1964 record of $267,496,854.

Even though a new record was established in 1965, Mr. Brothers said production was lower than expected because the Craigmont copper mine near Merritt has been closed since a strike began in October.

Another reason was that molybdenum mines at Boss Mountain near 100-Mile House and Endako about 100 miles west of Prince George did not come into production until mid-year.

NEW MINES

"Next year should be very good," said the minister, considering the output anticipated from these mines and the fact that three new mines will come into production.

These are Western Mines at the southern end of Butte Lake on Vancouver Island, which has deposits of copper, lead, gold and silver; Red Mountain molybdenum mine on the outskirts of Rossland and Tasu in the Queen Charlotte which will be producing iron concentrates, Mr. Brothers said.

ADDS TO GROWTH

"Prospects for 1966 include increased production of copper, molybdenum and probably of zinc and some other metals, and with normal growth in other minerals should further increase the value of mineral production," he said.

Molybdenum from the new mines at Boss Mountain and Endako added $11,000,000 to the total value.

Industrial minerals, structural materials and fuels all increased significantly, offsetting the decrease in metals and bringing the total moderately higher than in 1964.

ESTIMATED VALUES

Estimated production value figures for 1965, with 1964 final production value figures in brackets:

Metals — Gold, $4,500,000 ($5,283,075); silver, $6,400,000 ($7,348,938); copper, $34,350,000 ($38,609,136); lead, $41,400,000 ($39,102,293); zinc, $50,300,000 ($58,648,561); iron, $19,400,000 ($20,419,487); cadmium, $1,500,000 ($6,040,000); nickel, $2,950,000 ($2,845,790); molybdenum, $11,500,000 ($47,063); other metals including antimony, bismuth, indium and tin, $2,600,000 ($2,272,800); total all metals, $174,900,000 ($190,926,329).

Industrial minerals — Asbestos, $13,700,000 ($11,714,494); sulphur, $1,725,000 ($3,860,136); barite, flux, gypsum granules, etc., $1,425,000 ($1,772,225); total industrial minerals, $19,850,000 ($17,347,155).

Structural materials — Cement, $12,150,000 ($10,040,776); sand and gravel, $10,000,000 ($10,013,970); clay products, lime and limestone, rock and building stone, $6,350,000 ($6,374,193); total structural materials, $28,500,000 ($26,428,939).

Fuels — Coal, $6,600,000 ($6,327,678); natural gas, $13,810,000 ($12,192,816); natural gas liquid by products, $290,000 ($226,100); oil, $26,800,000 ($24,047,837); total fuels, $47,500,000 ($42,794,431).

Motorist Flees As Girl Killed

DRYDEN, Ont. (CP) — A nine-year-old girl was killed and her 11-year-old brother was injured Tuesday night when they were hit by a car while making their newspaper delivery rounds in this northeastern Ontario community. The driver left the scene and has not been located. Killed was Catherine Cortens. Her brother David was reported in good condition in hospital with an eye injury.

Talks Aimed To End Strike

GEORGETOWN (AP) — British Guiana's labor department officials held talks with officials of the Canadian-owned Demerara Bauxite Company and the mine workers union in an attempt to end the strike which had closed down the entire bauxite operations at Mackenzie, 65 miles from here.
